FRIENDSHIP OF FRANCE FOR U. S. WON BY AIRMAN

Lindbergh's Daring Flight Does More Than Diplomats Did in Years

CAN'T MEASURE BENEFITS

Washington Is Exuberant Over Good-feeling Promoted by "Lucky Charlie"

Washington—Charles Lindbergh has done something more timely than a mere demonstration of the value of aircraft. He has introduced a note of concord in an international situation which needed just such a touch to bring back a realization of the friendship that has in the past and should prevail between the French and the American people.

It will be noted that Ambassador Herrick took charge of the young hero, that messages were exchanged between the president of France and the president of the United States, that Lindbergh called on the mother of one of the unfortunate French fliers and that the Star Spangled banner was being sung in Paris in the last 24 hours as the Stars and Stripes were unfurled enthusiastically to the breeze.

To do that by one act of daring which gripped the admiration of the whole world is something so worth while in international relations that its benefit cannot be measured in terms of a day or month. The misunderstanding over the weather reports, the erroneous reports in the French press at the time the French fliers set forth and the general background of unfriendliness which has prevailed since the debt question has been agitated made the opportunity for a quick appeal to the emotions of the French people something as unparalleled as the flight itself.

WASHINGTON EXUBERANT

The government here is pleased, indeed, exuberant. Diplomacy knows what it means to get a whole nation speaking in praise of an American. It reminded the French of the heroic exploits of the American troops in the war. It brought back memories of the year when the Franco-American friendship was unmarred by any discussions either of bad sportsmanship or materialistic things.

And if the effect was impressive across the Atlantic it was equally so on this side. For the reports from France of anti-American feeling in the last two years have had their reflex on this side of the water. And this is the year when the American Legion makes its pilgrimage to France. Those who love France have been hoping that the sight of the American doughboys would revive the friendship that once existed between the French and Americans.

Charles Lindbergh was a sort of advance emissary. He has done by a single stroke more to put Franco-American relations on a plane of human friendliness than the diplomats could have done in years.

SCHOOL GIRL HIT BY CAR DIES FROM FRACTURED SKULL

Marcella Mary Hoffman, 13-year-old Town of Center Girl, Is Victim

Marcella Mary Hoffman, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hoffman, town of Center, died Tuesday morning from a fractured skull received when she was struck by an automobile on her way to St. Edward school at Mackville Monday morning. The car, driven by Harold Worth, town of Center, was said to be going at a rate of not more than five miles an hour when the child stepped in front of the machine. It is believed she was thrown to the pavement head first.

Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Worth were driving their children to the school. Mr. Worth's children got out first and their father drove on to turn around. He had not advanced his machine the length of the automobile when Marcella stepped out of her father's car in front of the Worth machine. It was reported.

She was picked up and taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by her father and a sister from the school.

The child was a pupil in the seventh grade of the school which she had attended since her school enrollment. Her thirteenth birthday was celebrated last week on May 18. She was born on the farm where her family now lives and was the oldest child. Surviving besides her parents are four brothers, John, Urven, Kenneth and Elmer; two sisters, Dorothy and Rita; and a grandmother, Mrs. Mary Hoffman of Greenville.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at Mackville. She was to have received solemn communion Sunday and 20 children who remain in the class will attend the services. The 10 boys will act as bearers and the girls as flower girls.

PREMIER ASKS LOWER HOUSE TO BACK MOVE

Will Terminate Agreement Thursday if Commons Give Their Approval

London—(AP)—Premier Baldwin told the house of commons Tuesday that Great Britain would terminate her trade agreement with Russia on Thursday and require withdrawal of the trade delegation and soviet mission from London unless the house should express disapproval of this course. The premier added that Great Britain, if the house approved, also would recall her mission from Moscow.

Premier Baldwin stated that the legitimate use of Arcos was not affected by the government's decision and that the government was prepared, while terminating privileges conferred by certain articles of the trade agreement, to make all the arrangements necessary for ordinary trade facilities between the two countries.

The premier said that for many months the police, in collaboration with the military authorities, have been investigating the activities of a group of secret agents engaged in an attempt to obtain highly confidential documents relating to the armed forces of Great Britain.

The premier said that from information received and evidence obtained as a result of these investigations, it became increasingly difficult to resist the conclusion that the agents were working in behalf of the soviet government and had obtained their instructions from members of the Russian trade delegation. The delegation, he said, arranged for the conveyance to Moscow of photographs or copies of the documents.

RECOVER DOCUMENTS

Premier Baldwin continued that these suspicions were confirmed when early this year a British subject, employed by the air forces was convicted of stealing two such documents. These documents were recovered and the individual was now undergoing imprisonment.

The identity of the secret organization on behalf of which this man had obtained the documents and its connection with a similar Russian organization had been established.

The premier said further that a document of official and highly confidential character, and so marked, recently had been found to be missing and from information and documentary evidence it became clear it had been conveyed to Soviet house and there reproduced by a photostatic process.

SEIZE SECRET PAPERS

During the raid on Soviet house, the premier said, a locked room was found containing a man hastily burning papers. After a struggle one of these papers was secured. It consisted of a list of secret addresses, including some in the United States.

The premier declared that both military espionage and subversive activities throughout the empire as well as North and South America were directed and carried out from Soviet House. No differentiation between the trade delegation and Arcos, housed in the same building, had been observed and both organizations had been involved in anti-British espionage propaganda.

Report De Pinedo Plane In Tow Of Sailing Craft

BULLETIN
Lisbon—(AP)—A radio message, received directly from Commander Francesco De Pinedo here Tuesday, stated he was being towed to the Azores and that he needed no further assistance. The commander suffered no injury in the descent of his plane to the sea.

BULLETIN
New York—(AP)—The first definite word that Francesco De Pinedo, four continent aviator, was apparently safe, was reported Tuesday afternoon by the Radio Corporation of America to the Associated Press in a diagram picked up by the radio corporation's coastal station at Chatham, Mass., reporting "all well" with his plane Santa Maria.

The radio corporation said the message, originating with the steamer Cabo Torres, was relayed through the Lehigh and read:

"Sailing vessel Infanta Vesagres bound southwest, towing Italian hydro airplane Santa Maria Savoia 1006. All well."

Buenos Aires—(AP)—Wireless advice from Lisbon to Nacion said that Commander Francesco De Pinedo landed 150 miles from the Azores because of fog and that his machine was being towed to Horta.

The possibility that it might be several days before it could be definitely learned if the plane reported to have been taken in tow by a schooner southwest of the Azores was suggested Tuesday. If the schooner had no auxiliary engine it would be some time before she could make port.

Parisians Will Greet Lindbergh On Holiday

Paris—(AP)—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh is firmly established as an idol in France. Tuesday, the third day since he completed his memorable air journey, the enthusiasm of Parisians showed no signs of waning, and his natural simplicity was making fresh friends every hour.

The universal spontaneous affection felt for him among all classes and conditions of Frenchmen is absolutely unique. No honor, it is felt can be adequate to express the national admiration. His every action is talked over by the newspapers and the people; he is sung of by popular bards. "Lindbergh, the Sage" is on every lip. Primitive bands, consisting of violin, guitar and concertina, peddle songs written in his honor in market-place and square, the men warbling the voice through megaphones.

But the people are satisfied with talking and reading about the hero; they want to see him. It was with the idea of satisfying this popular desire that the city council fixed on Thursday which is Ascension day and a public holiday, for a reception, so that as many as possible can get a glimpse of him.

On that day the president of the city council the vice presidents and officers of the assembly will go in state to the embassy to accompany Lindbergh in an open carriage by the Arc de Triomphe through the Champs Elysees and the Rue Rivoli to the city hall, on the steps of which he will be presented to Parisians.

PLANS FLIGHT

Lindbergh knows that the people above all want to see him in action in his element. He is planning to make a flight over Paris Thursday aboard his "Lucky" plane. The Spirit of St. Louis. At his request mechanics at Le Bourget airfield have already started overhauling his motor.

The blonde youth from the west, whose smiling features now are known to every Parisian from the innumerable photographs which have been printed, went to bed Monday night tired but thrilled by what perhaps was the most eventful day in his life. Chief among the honors bestowed upon him was the Legion of honor. President Doumergue pinned the decoration on his coat—borrowed from an embassy official—and later pointing to the emblem, Lindbergh said: "I go from joy to joy, and this is one of the greatest."

After hearing his praises sung by Minister of War Painleve and other statesmen, he made a three sentence speech which was sufficient to endear him further to the hearts of Frenchmen.

"Friends," he said, "I am not going to try to make a speech. I am just going to try to tell you how impossible it is for me to express my feelings. The only thing I can say is how deeply all the United States felt the loss of your two great aviators who undertook something far greater than the flight from New York to Paris."

From now until he flies to Brussels Saturday virtually every hour of Lindbergh's days has been assigned to some official or semi-official function—luncheons, banquets and receptions. From Brussels he expects to fly to London on Monday.

There is a possibility of his going to Sweden to visit the birthplace of his father.

3,000 WORKERS WATCH RIVER BREAK LEVEE

Last Dry Spot in "Sugar Bowl" Threatened as Waters Pour Through Gap

New Orleans—(AP)—The last dry spot in the famous Louisiana "sugar bowl," an area approximately 150 miles north of New Orleans on the west bank of the Mississippi, was threatened with immediate inundation Tuesday through a break in the levee at McCrea, ten miles below Old river on the east bank of the Atchafalaya.

Two thousand men, augmented early Tuesday by an additional thousand, saw their work go for naught when the pent up waters rushed through at 3:30 Tuesday morning. Parts of five parishes were in the new path of the flood. Information of the break reached Flood Relief Director John M. Parker from the sheriff of Point Coupee parish.

Warned of the danger, 1,500 persons had been evacuated from the area. Plans were made Tuesday to dynamite bayous in the Bayou Chenet country, approximately 100 miles west northwest of New Orleans, where 150 persons were reported to be marooned.

ACCESS CUT OFF

Access to the inundated sections on the southern border of the vast lake, which is sweeping down to the gulf, has been cut off by the heavy growth of water hyacinth in the bayous.

Only one boat has been able to make the journey to Bayou Chenet so far and the crew reported when they returned Monday afternoon that they had to saw their way through. Unless more boats are able to get through at once, those who live along the bayou will be in danger.

The water hyacinths have added to the troubles of those living along the bayous. Huge masses of them, loosed by the flood waters, have floated down the bayous and lodged against bridges and piers where they have added greatly to the strain which the bridges are under from the high waters. In some cases they have made the bridges so unsafe that they have been closed.

A party of volunteers left New Iberia Tuesday morning with dynamite to open the way into the Chenet country.

START CIVIL SUIT IN MADISON STRIKE

Non-union Carpenter Brings Civil Action Against Union at Capital

Madison—(AP)—Civil suit against the Brotherhood of Union Carpenters and the Madison building trades alliance was started here Tuesday at the instigation of Frank Kilgore, a non-union carpenter, who was one of a group of 22 strike-breakers attacked as a protest against their working on the Memorial union job.

Kilgore is represented by Roman A. Heilmann, attorney who also represents Jacob Pfeiffer, general contractor for the building. Several union men were named as co-defendants with the carpenters union and the alliance.

It is understood that Kilgore's action is intended to determine if possible the identity of men who Friday night destroyed a shack in which the "strike breakers" were living and also threw ink on the memorial building.

Several outbreaks have occurred since union men refused to work on the building while non-union men were employed.

COOLIDGE MAY GO TO SOUTH DAKOTA

President Finds Black Hills Alluring for Possible Summer White House

Washington—(AP)—President Coolidge is giving serious consideration the Black Hills, S. D., site suggested for a summer White House.

While it was announced at the White House that the president had not reached a definite conclusion as to this summer plans, it was said that the South Dakota hills appeared very attractive to him and that he was having a careful inspection made to determine whether accommodations could be supplied for the large staff he must take with him and the newspaper correspondents.

Detailed reports on all of the places suggested for summer White House recently were given to the president by Edwin W. Stirling of the White House secret service who visited them.

The president expects to leave Washington about the middle of June. The state game lodge in the Black Hills has been offered to him. There was some concern about the accommodations which would be available for the office force and newspapermen.

The fact that the president is looking to the Black Hills is regarded as indicating that he will give careful consideration to altitude.

16 AMERICAN WOMEN TO MEET KING AND QUEEN

London—(AP)—The first installment of London's great annual display of feminine beauty will be given Tuesday night when 16 Americans will be among the many foreign women presented to King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham palace by the wives of the ambassadors. It will be the first court of the season and hundreds of debutantes and others will throng the palace.

At 8:30 the palace will be opened for the reception of the guests, but the first cars will take their places in line as early as 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Their occupants, meantime, bearing the admiration of the crowd until the word is given to move forward.

Tuesday night's presentation will be a diplomatic affair, and for this reason will be more elaborate than the court of the next night and the others that are to follow.

JURY AWARDS ONE CENT DAMAGE IN SLANDER CASE

Minneapolis—(AP)—One cent was awarded by a jury in district court here Monday to Dr. Lewis L. Tenbrook who sued Harold Birkeland for alleged slander and false arrest in connection with the death of the latter's father, Rev. Knute B. Birkeland, in November, 1925.

The jury returned its verdict after less than an hour's deliberation. In answer to a question submitted by the court, the jury held young Birkeland "acted in good faith and without malice in causing the arrest of the plaintiff."

REFUSES COMMISSION IN VANZETTI PROBE

Boston—(AP)—Governor Alvan T. Fuller, in a letter to the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee, made public Tuesday, made his first definite statement that he would not grant the repeated requests for appointment of a special commission to review the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, radicals whose conviction of murder and sentence to death has raised protests throughout the world.

BYRD WILL HOP OFF TO PARIS TO OBTAIN DATA ON WAY ACROSS

New York—(AP)—A flight to Paris for the purpose of scientific and practical observation will be made by Commander Richard E. Byrd in the monoplane America. Commander Byrd and Grover A. Whalen, vice president of the Trans-Oceanic Corp., which owns the plane, said in a joint statement the successful flight from New York to Paris by Captain Charles A. Lindbergh had occasioned no change in their plans. The polar flier is continuing his preparations to hop off from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, in the triple-motored Fokker monoplane, with Lieutenants George O. Noelle and Bert Acosta. Byrd has tentatively figured on starting some time this week.

"The flight was planned for scientific purposes," said Whalen. "Lindbergh's achievement, great as it was, has not lessened the need for scientific data on trans-Atlantic flying."

Byrd said that Rodman Wanamaker, president of the company and chief backer of the project, had no desire to detract from the glory of Lindbergh, but felt that plans for the America's dash to Europe had progressed too far to be abandoned.

MILLER AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE BILL IS KILLED BY ASSEMBLY

Measure Is Opposed in Lower House as "Too Far Ahead of Times"

Madison—(AP)—After two bills for compulsory insurance of automobile drivers had been killed at Monday night's session, the assembly Tuesday accorded the same fate to another measure of that nature by Assemblyman A. J. Miller.

The lower house also killed a bill for redistribution of Dover rights and one for mailing sample election ballots to the homes of voters and laid over until next Tuesday night the interim committee bill for taxation of income of banks.

Despite long arguments in favor of the compulsory property damage insurance bill by Mr. Miller, the assembly voted, 51 to 27, to kill it. It was opposed as being "too far ahead of the times," only two states now having required insurance of automobile operators.

There were three amendments to the bill on the restriction of dower rights of widows. One by Assemblyman Reis, allowing the widow to receive one-half, instead of one-third of an estate was killed with the author's approval. Mr. Reis voicing favor for the Kiesner amendment which allowed the widow $5,000 of any estate up to $15,000, and a third of estates above that figure. The third amendment cut the $5,000 clause to $3,000. The second amendment, amended, was then killed after a tedious discussion and the assembly voted indefinite postponement for the whole bill, 75 to 8.

The state senate Tuesday laid over its major bills for future consideration took up several minor measures got stalled and recessed until Tuesday night completing less than a third of the calendar.

Senator H. H. Smith's bill calling for a state narcotic law, a twin to that now enforced by the federal government was engrossed. Legislation stopped at that point, when a bill asking the repeal of the personal property tax on automobiles was brought forth for argument. Adjournment was voted during the discussion.

SUPERIOR DECIDES FORM OF BOARD AT ELECTION

Superior—(AP)—Superior was up early Tuesday morning voting at a special election to determine if the present appointive school board shall be replaced by an elective school board. It is freely predicted the move for an elective board will carry by from 2 to 3 to 1. Early reports from the 17 polling places indicated a heavy vote.

The school strike which lasted all April precipitated the election. The school board ousted first Miss Lulu J. Dickinson and the students remained away from classes a solid month in protest. They returned, and a week later the board ousted C. G. Wade, principal of Central high school. Petitions which had been circulated previous to the ousting of Wade resulted in setting Tuesday's election.

SAYS DRAINAGE DISTRICT CAUSES $3,000,000 LOSS

Chicago—(AP)—A three million dollar annual loss to Great Lakes shipping was blamed on Chicago drainage district Monday night by Lieut. Colonel G. R. Pillsbury of the United States Engineering corps, in addressing a Western convention of Engineers.

The diversion last year lowered the lake levels six inches, he said. He based his estimate of loss on figures supplied by shipping interests.

NAVY OFFERS PASSAGE TO PARIS FLIER

Action Is Taken After President Confers With Acting Secretary

"SLIM" MAKING SPEECHES Hopes He Hasn't "Kept You Too Long" After 10-Minute Description

Washington—(AP)—A naval destroyer was placed Tuesday at the command of Captain Charles Lindbergh, New York to Paris flier for his return to this country.

The navy department directed Commander W. W. Galbraith of destroyer Division 25, which is now located in European waters, to offer the services of the vessel for Lindbergh's return. Accommodations also will be offered for the return of Lindbergh's plane.

The Division sails from its European base about June 15, direct for the United States. The navy's action was taken after a conference at the White House Tuesday between President Coolidge and acting Secretary Robinson.

President Coolidge continues to show the keenest interest in Lindbergh's achievement, feeling that it was one which grows in the imagination as its many phases are contemplated.

It is understood here that Lindbergh contemplates a "good will" flight over some European capitals of his own volition. No suggestion has reached the White House that the government might send him on such a tour.

GIVES 10-MINUTE TALK

Paris—(AP)—Captain Lindbergh made his second Paris speech at a luncheon given in his honor Tuesday by the American Club. It was, even a greater success than his first, given Monday night, although he stuck to the same simple style.

After holding the guests spellbound for ten minutes with a most modest description of his New York-Paris flight, he concluded: "I hope I haven't kept you too long," and sat down amid a terrific round of applause.

A short glimpse into the re-tellers and telegrams that have cumulated since he sailed down upon Le Bourget field, and the sight of a squadron of cavalry called out to help the police keep open the streets through which he passed, Tuesday gave Captain Charles Lindbergh a better outlook than he has had thus far of the arduous future before him as a world hero. Ambassador Herrick's famous unexpected guest gave up the correspondence as a hopeless task.

"The boy," as everybody familiarly calls him, was obviously at ease Tuesday in clothes of his own, turned out by a Paris tailor in record time. Since his spectacular arrival from New York he had been wearing borrowed plumage.

MUST SHOW SELF

Lindbergh faced the luncheon tendered by the American club with composure. After getting into the dining hall he was obliged to go out and show himself, to prevent damage to the front of the building by enthusiastic masons and carpenters working on nearby structures and reinforced by the usual street crowds.

Facing the workmen, and hearing their cheers, he blushed again as he did Monday when President Doumergue pinned the cross of the Legion of Honor to his breast, and as he did once more Tuesday, a few minutes later when the one-armed war hero, General Gouraud kissed him on both cheeks.

Lindbergh had to go through the kitchens and basement of the Hotel Ambassador where the luncheon was given, to get up to the balcony. On the way he was forced to stop and shake hands with the cooks and scullery boys who abandoned their pots and kettles to give him one of the most spontaneous greetings he has received.

KISS HIS HANDS

Those who could reach him patted him, kissed his hands or gave vent to their frantic enthusiasm in any way that presented itself. Lindbergh came out through the window of the balcony with a French flag in his hand, and the street roared with cheers.

"Midnight," or ship girls, from all the dressmaking and millinery establishments in the center of Paris, massed on the opposite side of the street, were less favored than the cool air scullery boys, having to content themselves with throwing him kisses across the street.

Ambassador Herrick who presided at the luncheon, proposed that Lindbergh be made chairman of a committee of sportsmen to settle the world's political troubles, because, he said, "sportsmen fly so high above international tangles, with disregard for national boundaries and obstacles."

JURY HOLDS FATES OF FOUR IN MURDER TRIAL

Los Angeles—(AP)—The case of Mrs. Sarah Kerrick and four others, charged with the murder of Tom Kerrick, film cowboy player, in Hollywood exploded in April, was given to the jury in superior court here Tuesday.

NEWSPAPER WORLD LOSES BIG WRITER IN SMALL'S DEATH

Former Associated Press
Head Said He Was One of Best Graphic Writers

Washington—Robert T. Small, one of the most versatile writers of the present day, is dead. He went to sleep Sunday and never woke up. His heart which had been giving him concern during the last two years failed. He was only 49 years old.

For men have gained the place that Bob Small, as he was familiarly known to his colleagues from coast to coast, held not only in the esteem but the affection of the newspaper world. He was personally popular as were his writings. He could write a dispatch on national politics which would command attention and he could stir the emotions of his readers equally by story of a prize fight or a football game or a derby. He was adept at personality sketches and could write a murder trial with the freshness of touch of a young reporter and all the maturity of a veteran hardened to the vicissitudes of crime news. Wherever the "big story" happened to be, there Bob Small went. He had recently traveled from coast to coast. He was well known not alone in newspaper circles but among public men the country over.

STARTED ON STAR
After his boyhood days in Atlanta, Bob Small came here to join the staff of the Washington Star and made such a splendid record that when he was drafted by the Associated Press he was given a gold watch by his co-workers on the Evening Star.

His first story to attract attention on the "A. P." was his dispatch on the Haywood-Moyer-Pettibone trial at Boise, Idaho. Then he covered the Thaw trial in 1906, giving to the newspapers of the country a vivid account of that sensational episode. When the American fleet departed in 1907 for its cruise around the world, Bob Small wrote a descriptive story that caused many an editor to ask the identity of the anonymous author. He covered the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation during the Taft administration and traveled 100,000 miles with President Taft.

In 1912 he became superintendent of the southern division of the Associated Press but he disliked executive duties and when the war broke out he was sent to the British front in France. For many months, he was the only American correspondent at the British headquarters. He joined General Pershing when the latter landed in 1917. Later he became Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger and his dispatches were signed for the first time. He was special writer also for the Washington Post for a brief interval and then in 1920 joined the staff of the Consolidated Press Association in whose service he was until the end.

WAS GRAPHIC WRITER
Melville E. Stone, editor for many years the general manager of the Associated Press, said of Bob Small that he was one of the first four or five graphic writers in America. He had an individuality and smoothness of style which gave his dispatches a large following. His widow, Mrs. Edgar, said he was the daughter of the late Admiral Sigsbee. She and three daughters who survive him are in Honolulu on a vacation trip. He had recently visited them in California. The Rev. Dr. Samuel Small, his father, a noted evangelist and old-time newspaperman, also survives him and he has a brother living in Pasadena. Funeral services will be held here Tuesday afternoon, after which the body will be cremated.

Agreement in Case Against Railroad Company Is Reached
Outside of Court

An amicable settlement for $10,000 in a suit for $10,700 brought by Sam Brown of Ashtabula, O., against the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company was reached Monday afternoon just before the case was to have been tried in Circuit court before Judge Edgar V. Werner. Lonsdorf and Stiebel represented the plaintiff and John F. Baker of Milwaukee appeared for the defendant.

Brown alleged in his complaint that the railroad company was responsible for the death of his son, Fred, who was killed at a crossing in Medina, when the car in which the son was riding was struck by a passenger train the evening of Oct. 12, 1925. The son was driving east on Highway 18 and the train approached the crossing without sounding either whistle or bell. It was alleged. A box car on an adjoining track obstructed the view of approaching trains, the complaint also said.

The railroad company also will pay all court costs.

A schedule of classes also is being prepared this week by Mr. Jensen.

ONLY 7 CLEAR DAYS RECORDED IN MAY

Only seven clear days have been recorded in Appleton so far in May and rain totaling almost two inches has fallen since the first of the month, not including the last few days, according to weather records here. In-fall of Friday, Sunday and Monday swelled the total but before that about 1.75 inches had fallen since May 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald H. Fienke and daughter, Ruth, of Madison, visited relatives in Appleton last weekend.

Borahs, Who Live Within Their Income, Do Not Own Automobile; Neither Do They Entertain At Functions

Washington, D. C.—A certain social secretary here is threatening to compile a very original book of this city's great.

The book will contain the names of people who are great because of position, but because of the things that only a social secretary could know about them.

THE FIRST NAMES
If this book goes to press it's a sure thing that the names of Senator and Mrs. William E. Borah of Idaho will, like Abou Ben Adhem's lead all the rest.

On any one of a dozen counts. First, probably, because they live within their senatorial income. This in itself would be enough to make them great. But you may recall that the Borah income is just $2,500 less than that of all the other U. S. senators.

For while the other senators draw their $10,000 a year, Senator Borah draws but $7,500. He could have the $10,000 if he wanted it, but he says that the folks back home sent him to the Senate with the understanding that he was to be paid $7,500, and he doesn't see how he can conscientiously take the increase.

Perhaps it is because they live within their income that the Borahs will figure in the book for other forms of greatness—remembering that what is great in Washington might not be so elsewhere.

Next on the list would come the fact that they own no car, although story has it that the question of to own or not to own a car is causing a certain dissension within the bosom of the Borah home.

HE DIDN'T GET IT
A recent visitor at the Borah apartment tells this amusing tale. The bell rang. Mrs. Borah listened to the conversation between the maid and the caller. She deduced that the caller was an auto salesman. "Call him," she called out. "That the senator is very busy, and can see no one." The maid firmly closed the door.

In another minute the senator burst into the room, a wild look in his eye. "Who was that at the door?" he demanded. "Just an auto salesman, dear," said his better half. "I sent him away. I knew you wouldn't want to be bothered."

"Bothered? Hell!" thundered the senator. "I had sent for that man."

"So I thought, dear," said Mrs. Borah. The Borahs have no car and they do not entertain.

NOW YOU ASK ONE

A FEW ARE EASY
Some of the questions in today's list should be answered by every one, but one or two are more difficult. Answers to this list are found on page 2.

1—What explorer has been at both the north and the south poles?
2—What are vitamins?

3—Through what country would the proposed second canal joining the Atlantic and Pacific oceans pass?
4—Who is called "Miss Poker Face"?

5—What action did the Detroit convention of the American Federation of Labor take towards Soviet Russia?

OATS used to take a while to cook. Now they're ready in 2 1/2 to 5 minutes.

Thus starting days with less nourishing foods is a folly. Quick Quaker supplies the excellently "balanced" ration of protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and the "bulk" (to make laxatives less often needed) that active people need to carry on the day.

Get Quick Quaker. Food that's delicious; food that "stands by" through the morning. Start each day that way.

Your grocer has Quick Quaker—also Quaker Oats as you have always known them.

no entertaining. Neither do they accept invitations.

HOSSES ANGLE FOR 'EM
As a result they are considered great social "catches" and the hostesses simply will not give up.

Mrs. Borah has a use for her invitations. She bundles them up and sends them back home to amuse her mother. The last package contained 35 dinner invitations received in two days.

About the only functions which the Borahs attend are the White House receptions, the state dinners in the White House, and informal lunches and dinner with the Coolidges, with whom they are close friends.

They tell this story in Washington. Not so long ago a very serious political power was in the Borah apartment. Suddenly he shrieked, jumped to his feet, and brushed from his bald pate a yellow bird. The bird was one of the many canaries which Mrs. Borah keeps and permits to fly at large through the ten-room suite.

"My God," the power is reported to have told the tale to his colleagues. "No wonder that Senator from Idaho has bats in his belfry on some subject. Birds fly loose in their house."

"Needless to say, this power is not the kind who refuses his $2,500 salary."

He returned recently from the National Outdoor show at Chicago where he tied for second place in casting contests.

She refuses to "work" the senator in any way, and directs those who seek her influence with him to approach him directly themselves.

Perhaps no Washington women except Mrs. Coolidge and Alice Longworth receive queerer requests.

A glimpse at Mrs. Borah's morning mail revealed—

"You are a good friend of Henry Ford. I do a great deal of outside work. Have him send me a Ford preferably a coupe."

Another read—

TEACHERS ISSUE "EXTRA" JOURNAL DENOUNCING BILL

Daggett Measure Which Would Abolish Retirement
Fund Is Opposed

Madison — (AP) — The Wisconsin Teachers association Tuesday published an "Extra" edition of its Journal of Education, to urge teachers and citizens of the state to work against passage of the Daggett bill in the legislature abolishing the teachers retirement fund.

The title page of the extra edition says it is published "to acquaint teachers of Wisconsin with the danger threatening the retirement fund; our hope is that it will be read carefully by every teacher."

It continues: "If Bill 1155 passes the Assembly and is signed by the governor the Retirement System will be wrecked. We suggest you write your member of the Assembly at once urging its defeat."

"The original Daggett bill was supported by the Wisconsin Manufacturers Association. They assured us, however, that they had no intention of destroying the system. Senator Daggett introduced a substitute to his bill which provided money for both the State and Milwaukee systems. Other substitutes were offered and the Caldwell substitute was finally adopted. It was argued on the floor of the Senate that teachers are opposed to the system, that they are over-paid and that the more salary they receive, the less service they render."

"The Caldwell substitute and the roll call on its adoption and final passage follow. Read them carefully. If the law is to be saved it must be done by teachers and other friends of education. Here in Madison a lobbyist is looked upon with suspicion. Legislators are genuinely interested in what their constituents think. It is imperative therefore that every assemblyman hear from home."

"Bill 1155, if it becomes a law, will take away funds from the Milwaukee system. It will take away the rights of 12,000 teachers in the Wisconsin State and Milwaukee systems. The Caldwell substitute in some things has for its motto 'Backward'."

The magazine then outlined the proposed law, gives the roll call on its passage by the senate, decisions of the supreme court on the annuity fund and several pages of questions and answers revealing the working of the law and its history.

MOSER BROTHERS TO OFFER CONCERT HERE

The Four Moser Brothers, Swiss singers, yodelers and musicians will give a concert at Eagle's hall Wednesday evening under auspices of the Appleton Maennerchor. A dance will follow the concert. Tickets have been placed on sale at Eagle's hotel. The Moser Brothers played a concert in Appleton last fall and made such a hit that they were invited to play a return engagement here this spring.

Each brother is able to play several musical instruments. Their concert consists of vocal, instrumental and yodeling solos, duets, trios, and quartets. This will be their final appearance in Appleton, as they plan to return to their native country, Switzerland, after their spring tour.

The Maennerchor will meet at 7:30 Thursday evening at Gil Myse hall for a regular weekly rehearsal, according to William Eggert, president.

SOL ADVISES MEN TO TAKE LESSONS FROM LADY VOTERS

State Treasurer Praises
League of Women Voters in Get-out-the-vote Campaign

La Crosse.—(P)—More males of Wisconsin were admonished to "take a lesson from the work that is being done by the League of Women Voters" by Solomon Levitan, state treasurer here Monday night. He spoke before the local women voters organization.

"We have groups of women from all over the state taking an intelligent interest in public affairs, making a contribution to the welfare of all the people through watching and backing legislation intended to benefit their communities or the state," he said.

"True, we men occasionally show an interest in some bill before the legislature if it is something that affects our particular business. We are quick enough then to get lobbyists on the job, but the men of Wisconsin have no such organization as have the women to lend their united support to measures which will benefit all the people.

"Just last week the Governor's veto of the permanent registration bill called our attention to the fact that it had been sponsored by the Wisconsin League of Women Voters. Representatives Wisconsin Women themselves appeared and talked in favor of the bill.

They pointed out how it would save money through eliminating special registration days. They explained how under this plan, all persons might register with the city clerk at any time when it was convenient. Once registered, the voters would remain so permanently unless he failed to vote in any election in a period of two years, or died, or moved away.

"One of the fine things the League of Women Voters has sponsored has been the get-out-the-vote campaign. This permanent registration plan the women feel will help them to get out a larger vote.

"The Governor's veto of this bill need not be any discouragement for the veto came because it was found the bill in its present form was unconstitutional through not being made to apply uniformly to all cities. The bill can easily be amended to make it constitutional, and I understand the legislature is redrafting it.

"The other bills the League is backing are equally worth while. They are asking an appropriation for a new site and buildings for the Industrial School for Girls. They are recommending passage of the school equalization bill advocated by the Department of Public Instruction. They are urging a renewal of the appropriation to the State Board of Health for child welfare and maternity work under the Sheppard-Towner act.

"I would like to see men of Wisconsin thus banded together for the good of the state. The fact that this organization is strictly non-partisan, makes possible a program which will contribute to the welfare of all the people without in any manner becoming involved in partisan or factional politics. Why should we not have an organization including both men and women who are interested in backing worthwhile legislation?

"Until such time, however, every man and woman can at least make his influence felt by informing himself about the bills that are up before the legislature, and writing his assemblyman or senator about them."

PATENT GRANTED TO CHARLES SEABORNE

Charles R. Seaborne, 815 E. Alton-st. was one of a group of Wisconsin inventors granted a patent by the United States patent office at Washington, D. C., during the past two weeks. Mr. Seaborne's invention is an engraving method and apparatus. The patent was secured by Young and Young, Milwaukee patent attorneys.

Commercial-st met with the board of public works Monday afternoon in an effort to have that body speed up the improvement work of that street so that the part between Wisconsin-ave and the first bridge to the north could be opened for traffic. The board promised to do all in its power to satisfy the property owners. Since the removal of the large cement mixer, the construction of the walks has lagged on account of a smaller crew and a few rainy days. The work is about 200 feet of walk to be placed and the ornamental poles to be erected before the work will be completed. Several iron poles have been erected and others will be installed as fast as possible. The work of setting up the poles is under the direction of Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company workmen.

WRECKER FINDING DIGESTERS FIRM

Work of Tearing Down Machines in Mill Proving Unusually Difficult

Menasha—The taking down and breaking up of the three digesters of the former Island Paper company which were sold to Barney Rosenthal by the company's successors, the Menasha Paper Mills company, is proving much more of a task than was contemplated. The purchaser, subject the work to a Milwaukee wrecker, who commenced taking down the last one Tuesday. He has been at work more than two weeks on the other two. The digesters are in an upright position and are somewhat elevated. In taking them down extreme caution has to be used in order not to damage the building adjoining them. The building in which they were located has been razed because of the change made by the new company which manufactures sawtooth. The ends of the digesters cause the greatest delay as the lining adheres to them more firmly than to the sides and a drill makes very little impression upon it.

Conley, district attorney, Darlington. The opinion was asked on the basis of a case in which a "Mr. Black" was charged with violation of the prohibition laws.

In an opinion to the real estate brokers' board, the attorney general held that this board "must, upon finding an applicant trustworthy and competent within the meaning of the statutes, grant him a license; cannot deny it solely on ground that applicant will not engage in broker's business exclusively."

LIONS REPORT ON STATE CONVENTION HELD AT WAUSAU

Annual Gatherings Will Be Held at Beginning of Week in Future

The state convention of Lions International held at Wausau Friday and Saturday was discussed at the meeting of the club Monday noon at Conway hotel. Those who reported on the meetings were Harvey Schlitz, Richard White, William Faltatlek, Dr. A. E. Adair, Dr. Charles Remeck, Dr. J. A. Holmes, Herb Hollie, Dr. Earl Baker and H. L. Bowley. Frank Baker, Milwaukee, the second district governor of Wisconsin, was a guest.

Dr. Earl Baker, supervisor of music in the Appleton schools, was appointed chairman of some leaders of Lions clubs in the state, it was reported. The chairman of the extension work of the clubs in Wisconsin will be F. M. Delanger, acting district manager of the Wisconsin Telephone Co.

The boys' chorus taken to Wausau under the direction of Dr. Baker was an outstanding success, it was agreed. The boys were scheduled to sing once and they appeared after repeated requests at four meetings.

Mr. Schlitz reported on five resolutions adopted at the convention. The delegates voted to send a recommendation to the President of the United States to consider the treaty which would outlaw war between this country and France. The state Lions organization will distribute the juvenile Braille magazine for the blind to all blind children registered in the state. During the school year one magazine will be provided for each ten children and in vacation time one for each child.

State conventions will be held at the beginning of the week instead of the latter part in the future because this will enable retail dealers to attend more easily. The delegates adopted a resolution thanking Wausau for the splendid way in which the program was presented. No delegate from any club will be recognized at state conventions unless the per capita tax of the club has been paid in full, it was decided. This will enable the state organization to finance conventions without putting too great a financial strain on the host city.

any details from her. She continued on course, did not answer Morse lamp signals. Plane believed to have twin engines, single wing, appeared to have tricolor on rudder.

The position given in this message would indicate that if the plane in tow is that of DePinedo he got far out of his course, being considerably south-west of the Azores.

The message was received at about the time a dispatch came from Horta, capital of Fayal, of the Azores group, revealing that as midnight approached, nothing had been heard of the flier and his two companions. This dispatch said the authorities had caused a search to be made around the coasts of the Islands, but without success. The weather was rainy, although the sea was calm. It obliged to alight on the sea the aviators would not necessarily be in danger.

Monday night a report came to London that a large white plane had been sighted at a point roughly 350 miles from the Azores and it was believed this was the Italian Plane.

While the "Tricolor on rudder" gave rise to conjecture that the towed plane might be the missing Nungesser-Coli trans-Atlantic plane, aeronautic circles pointed out that the section of the ocean in question was far removed from the route taken by the French fliers.

NAME WILL STAND OUT
Probably no more gripping human interest story has ever been carried by the press than that which told of the successful flight of young Lindbergh. All of the surroundings were dramatic in the extreme, the manner of his entrance into the race, his departure, the extra hazards he took by flying alone, his youth, his personality and his extreme modesty. In addition, his complete lack of personal fear and his supreme confidence in his ability to win heightened the charm of his daring undertaking and gave it a tremendous popular appeal. Through it all he has preserved his simplicity and the qualities which so quickly gave him a place in the affection and good-will of the public. He has taken his achievement, with its enormous significance and its extraordinary reception, with all the shyness and reserve he exhibited when he entered the picture. Without doubt more persons followed his fortunes in this brief and spectacular feat than have followed the fortunes of the armies in war and of giants in other fields of daring competition.
The story of his flight will live as long as recorded history, not merely because of the great contemporary interest it aroused and its spectacular nature, but because it is the first realization of a fact the world has dreamed of for centuries and that in the generations to come will so alter international communication, together with political and economic relations, as to almost revolutionize the world. In other words, it is the forerunner of a stupendous age, of which we now only have a glimpse. There are many pioneers whose names will live in the development of aviation, but that of Lindbergh will always stand out conspicuously because he did the supreme performance, and did it alone.
We think the assumption that Capt. Lindbergh's success will improve the relations between France and the United States is correct. Great known personalities are levelers of misunderstanding, and everything pertaining to Lindbergh and the surroundings of his exploit are calculated to inspire sympathies that will bring the peoples of France and the United States closer together.

TWO GLIMPSES
This country is in a pretty prosperous condition nowadays, and things like hunger and want don't come very close to most of us. But it is just as well that we who are so fortunate do not forget that hunger and want do still exist.
Here are two little glimpses into the lower strata of our prosperous nation, culled from the day's grist of news:
The first tells about Mrs. Frances Stenglern of New York.
Mrs. Stenglern had a husband and a baby. The husband was out of work; Mrs. Stenglern had a job as a janitress, for which she was paid $10 a month. On this the three of them had to live.
It was too much, Mrs. Stenglern, seeing only starvation ahead, abandoned her baby in a doorway, hoping that whoever found it would not let it die of hunger.
When she got home she found that her husband, by getting odd jobs, had accumulated $32. This was a godsend. The two went back to get the baby. It was gone.
Well, the story ends pretty well. Mrs. Stenglern went to the police, they found her baby for her, and she and her husband are trying it again. And that's that story.
The other story tells about Abraham Bass.
He is 90 years old and looking for a job. For 26 years he worked for one company, but finally he got laid off—too old. Now he's tramping the streets looking for work. "Something'll turn up," he says hopefully.

There you are. Two little glimpses of the shadowy side of our prosperous country.
What is to be done? That's a hard question. Probably it will be impossible for us ever to devise any system that will entirely prevent such tragedies. There will always be misfits; there will always be people who grow old without having been able to save.
But it is good for us to think about those stories occasionally. If it does nothing else, it keeps us from growing too complacent.

RADIO COMMISSION ACTS
The Federal Radio commission has undertaken its first general policy to eliminate radio interference. It has commenced by segregating what may be termed metropolitan zones, in which a complete re-allocation of frequencies is made. In the Chicago district, for instance, sixty-nine stations within a radius of one hundred miles of that city have been put on a frequency scale designed to reduce heterodyning to a minimum. In a number of instances several stations have been given the same frequency, or equivalent in wave length, but they are stations which have joint or common interests and operate at different hours.
This, of course, is only an elementary step in the solution of the radio problem. It will not improve reception from the important stations in the Chicago area to which outside listeners at a distance are accustomed to tune in. It is purely local in its application. It will be of benefit to those who are within the area and are close to a particular station which they wish to hear. Under the commission's order these new permits will be operative for a sixty-day test period. Presumably when the results of the experiment are ascertained further orders will be issued for the narrowing down of licenses, both in number and in privileges, until the results aimed at are ultimately secured.
The commission admits that no real relief can be granted to listeners until approximately four hundred stations are eliminated. In fact, it would prefer to eliminate more than that number. How far it intends to go it does not disclose, but it apparently understands the situation, together with the fact that drastic measures are necessary in order to restore radio to a semblance of order. In making its decisions with respect to elimination, the commission should take a broad, national view. While it will cause some dissatisfaction by refusing licenses to certain small stations and a few large ones which are notorious troublemakers, this dissatisfaction will be trivial in comparison to the approval it will have from millions of listeners throughout the country. It should not hesitate, therefore, to cut the number down arbitrarily on the basis of priority of right, character of and service rendered by the station and its all around merits. Possibly it could enlarge the number of radio operators consistently if it required those which would otherwise be eliminated to cut down their power to a minimum, say fifty watts, and confined them to the high frequencies.

POLICE EFFICIENCY
As an instance of extreme police efficiency we submit the Berlin, Germany, organization, which recovers more than 99 per cent of the cars stolen in that city. Last year, for instance, 420 cars were stolen and the police recovered 418, even though the hunt in many cases extended to all parts of the country.
It is true that the police are aided by sales and resale tax provisions that make the disposal of stolen cars hazardous, yet that cannot detract from the obvious efficiency of a system that might well be copied in America.

OLD MASTERS
I've plucked the berry from the bush, the brown nut from the tree.
But heart of happy little bird never broken was by me.
I saw them in their curious nests, close couching, slyly peer
With their wild eyes, like glittering beads, to note if harm was near;
I passed them by, and blessed them all; I felt that I was good
To leave unmolested the creatures small whose home was in the wood.

FALLACIES WE RELUCT TO RELINQUISH
3.—FEEDING THE YOUNG SKIN
Fashions in medicine are just a little less fickle than fashions in attire. Frequently a fad or fancy in fashions, splints or cough medicine sticks for several seasons, like horn rimmed specs. For example, a very dainty, palatable cough concoction introduced to physicians 10 years ago is still prescribed, thanks to lavish sampling by the manufacturer. That's what good taste does.
In an article about complexion published in the newspapers by Dr. John Lane, a New Haven skin specialist, the boy or girl with the badge of youth, acne (blackheads and pimples), reads that this almost normal physiological occurrence of youth . . . in its worst forms is frequently accompanied by starchy indigestion . . . whatever that may mean. It takes a skin specialist to jumble these frightful terms which may mean anything you care to imagine.
"The cutting down of starchy food often helps, while too much sugar makes the control of acne more difficult."
Right here Dr. Lane probably had an uneasy premonition or something, for he proceeds to attempt to justify this quaint suggestion by adding:
"Almost any girl . . .
The boys are left out of the epilome, perhaps because the girls are more likely to believe everything they read in the newspaper . . .
"Almost any girl who has controlled her diet for a time and then succumbed to the temptation of a box of chocolates can testify to the unfavorable result."
Considering the thorough way the education of girls is neglected in our present popular educational system it is not so remarkable that girls and women can and do testify to many absurd fancies relating to their health.
Even Dr. Lane is not so deeply obsessed with this carbohydrate prejudice as the unhappy boy or girl who reads the article might infer, for conscience prevails at the end and the article concludes with this remark:
"Most faddists believe in a 'cure all' and food faddists are no exception. There are many varieties of them, each believing that the key to health consists in leaving out altogether some particular class of foods or even limiting himself to one class . . .
It is fair to direct the youth's attention to the evasive mode employed by Dr. Lane in uttering this fallacy. He does not say that too much starchy food or candy or sweets causes acne. He merely mentions the fact that acne is "frequently accompanied" by some vague phenomenon which one must presume depends on the eating of too much starchy food or sugar. This is all quite correct, no doubt. I merely want the youth to beware of any deductions he or she may draw from such hazy premises. There is already too much monkeying with diet, among young women particularly, and the very medical association which sponsors Dr. Lane's newspaper article is conducting an educational campaign to warn young persons of the evil consequences of just such restrictions of diet as Dr. Lane here suggests.
It is truly a sad state of affairs, the hair or sparseness of it is "frequently accompanied" by a fondness for milk or bread or meat or movies, but it wouldn't mean anything.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Painting the Body
Can a human being live if the entire body is covered with paint? Has this ever been tried on an animal or human being? (B. E.)
Answer: There is a legend that a boy was gilded or painted by Leonardo da Vinci and the boy died within a few hours. If a warm blooded animal's skin surface is covered with paint or varnish the animal soon dies. A rabbit will die when one-fourth of the skin surface is covered with such impermeable material. Unless the animal's temperature is maintained at normal by means of artificial external warmth, a California humbug who has recently foisted himself on some newspapers as a "noted physician" (though he is not a physician at all) tells the public that the "millions of pores" in the skin be obstructed death follows in a few seconds from "toxins"—which is just an ignorant quack's fancy. If the pores are obstructed by varnishing the skin it is due to great reduction of body temperature, and may be prevented by the application of external warmth.

HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION ENDOWMENT
Washington, D. C. — In order better to carry on its work the American Historical Association is making a general appeal to the public for an endowment of $1,000,000. The income from such a fund will, it is stated, enable the Association to continue and enlarge its national services and not be faced in this era of the depleted dollar with serious curtailment of its activities.
This organization, the only distinctly national one of its kind in the country, is quasi-official in that it was chartered by Congress and its annual reports, presented through the Smithsonian Institution, are published by the Government as public documents. Two Presidents of the United States — Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson — have served as presidents of the Association.
The general headquarters are in Washington and the annual meetings have been held frequently in this city but in various years have been held at such widely scattered points as Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Charleston, Rochester, N. Y., New Orleans, and St. Louis. One notable summer gathering was held in California. There are about 3000 members of the Association, most of whom are engaged in the writing or teaching of history. There are, however, many well known leaders in business and in public life on the rolls, so that it is not an exclusively academic institution.
The Association was organized in 1884 by a group of distinguished men, including Andrew D. White, Francis A. Walker, Justin Winsor, and Herbert B. Adams. Among its officers and members have been famous historians and other notable scholars as George Bancroft, Henry Adams, Henry C. Lea, George F. Hear, Alfred T. Mahan, Charles Francis Adams, James B. Agnew, George Burton Adams, William A. Dunning, and H. Morse Stephens.
Dana C. Munro is now president of the Association and Vice President Charles C. Daves heads the list of members of the National Advisory Committee. Albert J. Beveridge, former United States Senator from Indiana, is chairman of the Committee on Endowment.
RECOGNITION OF CONTRIBUTORS
Those who drop $10,000 on the plate that is now being passed will be listed as Benefactors in the records of the society. Contributors of $5000 are to be designated as Donors, and those who give $1000 will be known as Patrons. Those who subscribe $100 will be enrolled as life members of the Association.
The income from the proposed endowment will make possible, it is said, a wider dissemination of historical information and better teaching of history in the schools of the country; the conservation of historical manuscripts, including records of the nation and of the individual States; the preservation through publication of important historical manuscripts; grants to scholars for the expenses of research essential to the great contributions of history to human knowledge; expert service to the Government and cooperative research in the historical backgrounds of such problems as those of international relations, of American business, and of agriculture and rural life.
Among those who have endorsed the endowment project are such American notables as former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Edward W. Dodge, Senator William E. Borah, Nicholas Murray Butler, John W. Davis, Senator Charles S. Deneen, John H. Finley, Glenn Frank, Senator Carter Glass, Herbert S. Hoar, David Jayne Hill, Secretary of Commerce H. Hoover, Charles Evans Hughes, Frank O. Lowden, A. Lawrence Lowell, Dwight Morrow, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Elihu Root, Albert Shaw, Ida M. Tarbell, William Allen White, and John Sharp Williams.
Mr. White, the breezy Kansas editor, says of the proposal that "a million dollars invested in saving human experience from oblivion would save billions in future war debts."
Former Secretary of State Hughes, who is chairman of the New York committee that is undertaking to raise one-half of the endowment, says, "If we are to profit by the lessons of the past, we should be sure that the lessons are accurately, dispassionately, and thoroughly taught."
EXPERT SERVICE TO GOVERNMENT
In general, it is explained, the American Historical Association undertakes to place at the disposal of the Government the resources of historical scholarship. The Liberty of Congress, in building up its great manuscript collections, has frequently relied upon the expert services of officers and members of the Association. Again, in 1908, one of its committees prepared, at the request of President Roosevelt, a careful report outlining a national policy for the publication of historical material in the National Archives.
Another contribution to a better understanding of American history has been made through the Historical Manuscript Commission which is constantly locating valuable manuscripts, especially those now in private hands. So far as possible such papers have been secured against loss and made available for students through publication. Among the pa-

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan

New York—The catch-penny brigade of this man's town leaps avidly at any sensation as a means of earning a few hundred quick shekels.
Hardly had the Snyder-Gray trial been started before some bright young man had routed his sight-seeing busses to include all "the points of interest." Spooks were quickly supplied with a lecture to be given upon passing the former Snyder residence and the courtroom. Sunday business became so great that three extra busses were commandeered.
Within a few hours of the time several Broadway plays had been halted by the stage censors copies of at least two were being "bootlegged" in upper Broadway.
The death of Valentino was followed within 12 hours, by two maudlin songs and five paperbacked "lilo stories." Caruso was hardly in the grave before the Pan Alley was announcing a song "They Needed a Star in Heaven, So God Took Caruso Away." The equal of this title is yet to be found.
Three motor trip agencies were operating to do Russia's lane within a week of the Hall-Mills sensation.
For years a gag has gone around Broadway concerning a young man who crashed the gate at a performance of Sophocles' "Electra" by telling the doorman he was the author.
Recently the old Greek drama was revived. On the second night a young gate crasher appeared:
"Suppose you're the author?" suggested the now cynical doorman.
"Oh, no! No, indeed, I'm merely the collaborator," came back the young man.
And the amazing part of this tale is that the young man told the truth—at least in part—since he had worked on a modernization of the play.
If you would get a fresh slant on this very chaotic city question a new-comer!

During the recent convention of newspaper editors I asked a column writer, who comes here as often as once a year, for a few impressions. He replied that he had walked up Madison to Murray Hill, and on the slopes of this spot, linked in tradition with the homes of the rich, had been accosted by two beggars. On the other hand, he had gone through the tenement belt, long associated with poverty, and seen couples, Fordes and limousines parked in front of a large fraction of them.
How come? he asked. Oh well, a man must drink!

It probable that this punishment was never regarded as legalized, but was always a type of mob violence.
Q. What was the standard for the English pound weight? G. N.
A. The original English pound was derived from the weight of 7000 grains of wheat, all taken from the middle of the ear and well dried. Thus the grain is the lowest fractional division of the pound. In the time of Henry VII, 7000 grains became the standard.
Q. Is the James McCreery department store of New York owned by individuals or is it a part of a chain of stores? A. R. F.
A. It is owned by the Associated Dry Goods Corporation, which also owns Hahne & Company, Newark; Stewart & Company, Baltimore; William Heingerer Company, Buffalo; Powers Mercantile Company, Minneapolis; J. N. Adams & Company, Buffalo; Stewart Dry Goods Company, Louisville; and is part owner of C. C. G. Gunther's Sons and Lord & Taylor, New York.
Q. Is there such a deformity of the shoulder blades known as wings? I have heard this expression used but supposed it was merely facetious. M. N.
A. An official bulletin of the United States Children's Bureau in describing symptoms of malnutrition in a child says, "Because of lack of muscular tone his shoulders are usually rounded, the shoulder blades sometimes standing out to such an extent as to produce the deformity known as wings."

Q. Should the sheathing on a stucco building be placed horizontally or diagonally? R. A. B.
A. The Bureau of Standards says that the sheathing on a stucco building should preferably be placed horizontally.
Q. How are the foundations laid in Venice so that houses are not washed away? A. B.
A. The City of Venice is almost entirely built upon mud flats and the foundations of the buildings secured by piling.

The Question Box
Q. How old is the practice of tarring and feathering? R. T.
A. This method of punishment is as old as the Crusades. The earliest mention of the punishment occurs in the orders of Richard Coeur de Lion, issued to his navy on starting for the Holy Land in 1191. Historians think

CIVIC ACHIEVEMENTS
GETTING VISITORS
BY DON E. MOWRY
Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association
The old saw about how the world treads a beaten path to the door of the man who makes the best mousetrap is probably all very true, but it never hurts the man to do a little advertising to let 'em know about his invention.
This is true of cities as well as individuals.
Colorado Springs has marvellous natural attractions. Its citizens felt that it ought to be a regular mecca for tourists. For several seasons they had made spasmodic efforts to get visitors without a great deal of success. So, one year, they appropriated $14,000 for advertising. This helped, and the next year they boosted the sum to $60,000. They advertised chiefly in newspapers, all over the country.
It worked. Over 88,000 visitors visited Colorado Springs last year, carrying some $25,000 people. More than 26,000 more people came by train. Three visitors spent some $12,000,000 in the Colorado Springs neighborhood.
Not a bad return for a $60,000 investment, is it?
It pays to tell the world about your advantages.

GREEN BAY SPENT MILLOIN IN 1926 FOR GOVERNMENT

Payments for Maintenance and Operation Totaled Exactly $1,005,566

Madison—(P)—It cost the city of Green Bay $1,005,566 to maintain its governmental functions during the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1926, figures received here Monday from the federal department of commerce revealed. The figures were prepared for the Washington department by Miss Elsie S. Dunlap, deputy city clerk of Green Bay.

The figures given was for "payments for maintenance and operation of the general departments" of the city, the commerce department report says. This amount made the cost of government per capita $25.81.

"In 1925 the comparative per capita for maintenance and operation of general departments was $28.82, and in 1917, $13.14," the report continues.

"Payments for the operation of public service enterprises (waterworks) amounted to $70,171; interest on debt, $137,883; and outlays for permanent improvements including those for public service, $278,830. The total payments, therefore, for expense of general departments and public service enterprises, interest, and outlays, were $1,452,568. Of this amount $41,006 represents payments by a city department or enterprise to another on account of services.

"The total revenue receipts of Green Bay for 1926, were $1,601,692, or $45.81 per capita. This was $38,061 more than the total payments of the year, exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, and $10,514 more than the total payments including those for permanent improvements. This excess of revenue receipts is reflected in payment of debt and in cash balances, not shown in this summary.

"Of the total receipts $41,006 represents receipts from a city department or enterprise on account of services. Property taxes represented 65.7 per cent of the total revenue for 1926, 66.2 per cent for 1925, and 72.3 per cent for 1917. The increase in the amount of property taxes collected was 200.1 per cent from 1917 to 1925, but there was a decrease of 6.9 per cent from 1925 to 1926. Earnings of public service enterprises operated by the city represented 11.9 per cent of the total revenue for 1926.

"The next indebtedness (funded or fixed debt less sinking fund assets) of Green Bay on Dec. 31, 1926, was $2,550,500 or $73.98 per capita. In 1925 the per capita debt was $77.54, and in 1917, $29.35.

EARLY TOURISTS CAUSING TROUBLE

Murders and Attempted Suicides Keeping Police Busy Continually

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris—Tourists are coming earlier than usual this year and already there are a great many English and Americans in town. Hotels and restaurants are courting upon the greatest season in history.

At the same time it is peculiarly true that English and American visitors are giving the French police considerable trouble. The American Comtesse de Janze, formerly of Chicago, who shot and gravely wounded her handsome English friend, Vincent de Trafford, in a compartment of a railroad train recently, will have to face an inquiry and she will be asked to give her reasons for committing the act and attempting suicide. In popular society cocktail rooms and among groups in which the pretty contest used to move, however, there is a conviction that she will be dealt with leniently unless more serious results occur. The French call such a case a "crime passionale," and as a rule they philosophically shrug their shoulders, as if to say that there is nothing that can be done about it.

Then, too, the bankrupt English solicitor, is still too ill in Boulogne to submit to extradition proceedings. Police in Boulogne are also trying to solve the mystery of the strange death of Nurse Daniels, whose body was found in an open field after months of exposure. It is now generally believed that she was the victim of foul play, but the police have not yet been able to satisfy anxiety in England.

Two or three familiar American faces in the "Quarter" of Montparnasse have disappeared. One, a young man about town who got in financial difficulties, was escorted to the hotel by a police agent, and another, a pret-

FLOOD RELIEF FUND INCREASES TO $3,300

About $3,300 has been received for relief of flood sufferers in the Mississippi river valley by the Outagamie-co chapter of the American Red Cross, according to P. M. Conkey, treasurer. The money continues to come in and the need in the flood districts continues, the treasurer stated.

A few hundred dollars more probably will be collected this week, he believed, as people have not let up just because the so-called quota is reached. Churches and other organizations and business concerns have taken collections among the members. Sums from $25 to $125 were brought from these sources within the last few days.

Calls for help have come constantly from the flooded sections.

ty young woman who was a great favorite, is said to have gone back accompanied by a private detective from home.

PLAN SPRING FESTIVAL
The delightful fever to spring, which the French feel so keenly, has gripped the capital. Trees and gardens are blooming, and the people smile easier.

Everybody who is anybody is back from the Riviera and the fashionable tea places of the Champs Elysees and the Bois de Boulogne are crowded every afternoon. The familiar gaiety about town, dormant during the winter months, is coming back strong.

So great is the French love of spring that a magnificent festival is now being planned in its honor. The people want to play and have a pretty procession. The spectacle will be staged in the main thoroughfares on May 22. It will be of an artistic character, and the ambitious plan is to make it superior to anything of this nature that has ever been held here.

A committee of prominent public men, artists and members of the theatrical profession is now busily engaged on the details. The parade will include elaborate floats, and there will be plenty of flowers and much music. Naturally little work will be done on the day of such a spring festival, and at nightfall there will be merry jostling and dancing in the streets.

All advertising in Constantinople except that in daily and weekly newspapers, has been taken over by the city, which will control it hereafter.

CAFETERIAS OR ALIMONY?

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

HER husband finally applied for a divorce on the grounds of neglect, or failure to cook him decent meals, or something of the sort.

What had really happened was that his wife had catered to the children and their needs at table and papa hadn't gotten his corn beef and cabbage, or whatever it was he craved, every day.

Mama had learned that as many children have malnutrition (under nourishment) from eating improper food, badly cooked food, or over seasoned food, as from not getting enough food.

So she took to making things they could digest easily. Dessert turned into a festival of custard or tapioca instead of pie. Also she had eggs and fish and chicken and a variety of vegetables, simply cooked and dressed. Papa wanted everything doused with pepper, and doused with horseradish, mustard, or strong sauces. He liked hot soggy breads and pancakes. It came to this—here was a mother without help and a little growing family. She had no time or strength to cook two sets of men's, so she did the best she could, and had character enough to place the children's health first.

Along comes her husband noon and evening acting like the blindest baby of them all and yelling because he isn't humored. Instead of co-operating and helping his tired-out wife, he assumes the role of martyr and chases out to the judge.

When will some men learn that raising a family isn't all the mother's responsibility? The father may provide, but even then, he usually has the easiest end. At any rate his selfishness should not interfere with his children's welfare.

It must cost less, if I may venture a suggestion, to visit the cafeteria around the corner than pay alimony.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinymites didn't hesitate, and sliding down the chute was great. They all took turns at running up and coming down again. They all would try to be real and land upon their little feet, but often they would flip around and tumble, now and then.

Old Duffy said, "Let's have a race. Just two of you get up in place, and when I shout the word to go, start sliding down the slide." "Well, who'll go with me?" Clowry cried. And Copy sat down by his side, and when they started, all the rest from laughing almost died.

Woe Copy was the first one down, so Clowry was a beaten champion. Said he, "I didn't get a start. Let's try it out once more." So, up they went and raced again, and Clowry felt much better when he won because he'd slid along much faster than before.

"Oh, look," said Copy, "there's a horse with stripes upon it." But of course the beast was just a zebra that had wandered near the bunch. Said Duffy, "He's very tame. He likes small tots. That's why he came. You all shall have a ride on him, and then we'll have some lunch."

Then Duffy put the zebra beside the monstrous chute and then he cried, "Now everybody slide right down, and land upon his back. I'll hold him so he cannot run. This really should be a scene of fun." The Tinymites then did as told. No courage did they lack.

The whole bunch slid, and, with a bound, they landed on him, safe and sound. When everybody there was set, they called it quite a treat. Soon Duffy made the zebra run, and as a finish to their fun, he headed toward his little home to let the Tinymites eat.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

"Mr. Robert Hathaway asked me to check up on the force and give him the information about the size of shoes they wear." Chief of Police Hathaway answered the district attorney's question defiantly.

"The Mr. Hathaway who is engaged to be married to the sister of this defendant?" Banning snapped.

"Guess so. 'He's the only Robert Hathaway I know.' Morehouse retorted.

"That is all, Chief," Banning dismissed him, his voice more cordial.

In rapid succession Banning examined two detectives, a number of the Cluny servants, the sheriff of Marboro County to whom Cherry and Chris had given themselves up the morning after the murder, and finally, two surprise witnesses.

The first was Clarence J. Purdy, a prosperous middle-aged business man, a neighbor of the murdered man.

"Where do you live, Mr. Purdy?" Banning asked.

"At 518 Crescent Drive," Mr. Purdy answered gravely, his broad, fair face a little flushed with embarrassment.

"Now, Mr. Purdy, do you remember the evening of Thanksgiving Day, November 23, last?"

"I do."

"Go ahead, Mr. Purdy, and tell your story in your own way," Banning suggested, settling back in his chair, his pipe now twirling on a black ribbon.

"My wife and I were invited to the Cluny wedding, and at about twenty minutes to nine, the hour set for the ceremony, we got the car out of the garage and drove it down the driveway toward the street. Just as the car was rolling out into the street a coupe, driven very rapidly, almost collided with my car."

"Go on, Mr. Purdy."

"The driver of the coupe wrenched the wheel, to swerve it out of the way of my car, which was going very slowly, was almost stopped, in fact. My headlights shone directly into the coupe for an instant so that I could see its occupants clearly."

"And did you recognize them, Mr. Purdy?" Banning asked loudly.

"I recognized the man as Mr. Chris-

Wanted! One Husband For Wealthy Dutch Princess!

The Hague, (AP)—Royal matchmakers, attention!

Princess Juliana will be 18 years old April 30. She will then have a castle of her own, and her income from the government will be considerably augmented.

Some day she will probably be queen of 60,000,000 people. Her fortune coming from the House of Orange-Nassau will be one of the greatest in Europe.

It would have been easy to provide a husband for Juliana if the Great War had not come about. The Minister for Foreign Affairs would have called the roll of German princes and Juliana would have selected the one most to her liking just as her mother did. But times have changed.

German principalities, duchies and kingdoms have been swept away, and monarchies which still exist do not care much for the titles of those which have been blended into the German Republic.

Juliana hardly would marry Olaf, the Crown Prince of Norway, as they are both in direct line for a throne. The same is true of Juliana and the Prince of Wales.

Juliana's husband must be a prince who is willing to move to Holland and remain here permanently in the same inconspicuous position

Prince Hendrick occupies. And being a Prince Consort is not an especially desirable job.

Prince Henry and Prince George, the younger sons of King George of England, would be eligible matches for Princess Juliana. Also Prince Charles, the second son of King Albert of Belgium. But as the Belgian house is Catholic, a marriage with the Protestant House of Orange-Nassau is regarded as unlikely.

Prince Knud, second son of King Christian of Denmark, who is now 26, is regarded as a likely suitor for Juliana's hand. The Danish house is not nearly as rich as the House of Orange-Nassau.

Prince Sigvard, second son of the Crown Prince of Sweden, who will be 20 next June, is another youngster in favor. Prince Lennart, the eighteen-year-old son of Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, second son of the King of Sweden, is another prospect.

Juliana will be a coed at Leyden University next autumn. The Queen has decided it is best for her daughter to have some special courses there in economics, politics and history to prepare her for the work of administering the great empire in the East Indies and Europe, which will some day come under her control.

TOWNSKIMBERLY SCHOOL
AWARDED TROPHY
IN SPELLING BEE

Holy Cross School, Victor for Two Years, Loses Possession of Cup

Kaukauna—Kimberly Catholic parochial school won the annual spelling bee conducted by the Kaukauna council of the Knights of Columbus at the K. of C. club rooms on Wisconsin Monday evening. When the contest was declared closed after an hour's effort by William T. Sullivan, eleven remained standing. Four of them, the entire team that started, were from Kimberly, three were from St. Mary's school on the south side, the team from Holy Cross, and one from Sherwood. Members of the winning team are: Leshout, John Doerflinger and Katherine Bruns.

The Kimberly victory snatched the silver trophy from Holy Cross school. Holy Cross won the trophy two years ago, but this year would have meant permanent possession of the trophy. A school must win three successive years to keep the cup. It was estimated that the children spelled approximately six hundred words in the hour. The time was divided into an intermission of fifteen minutes between the two periods. The words were taken from the list of 1,700 words to be used in the state fair spelling contest this fall and were compiled by John Callahan, Madison, superintendent of public education and Miss Clara Habernicht, assistant superintendent of the educational department at Madison.

Judges were Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan of Appleton. Approximately three hundred people crowded the club rooms to hear the contest.

FINISH HEALTH CLINIC

Kaukauna—Miss Mattie J. Hayes, city health nurse, reported Monday that it would take until school closes to finish the health clinic just started at St. Mary's parochial school. Examinations at other grade schools have been completed. Because of the large enrollment at St. Mary's, the clinic will require a longer period. This is the most complete health examination ever made of Kaukauna school children and when school closes early in June every child in the city grade schools will have had a thorough examination. Particular attention has been paid to heart and lung troubles as well as goiters. Miss Hayes plans on having her complete report ready early in June.

Largest Nitro-Glycerine
Manufacturers Use
Graham Brothers Trucks

If you travel on the by-roads through the great oil fields of Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, or those in other sections of the country, you are likely to meet trucks on whose sides large letters spell NITRO-GLYCERINE. If you are prudent, you will pass by cautiously for this truck probably contains 300 to 400 quarts of the most concentrated of all explosives.

Transportation of nitro-glycerine, an essential in the oil fields for the "padding" of wells, is one of the most hazardous of occupations. It presents especially difficult problems due to the passage of laws which prohibit vehicles containing the substance from running on main highways or within limits of any city or town. Other recent laws prohibit its transportation by rail. The entire production therefore must be handled by automobile or truck.

The presence of such drastic laws has made these trucks the by-roads, many of which are almost impassable. Trucks of the most rugged structure and exceptional roadability are required to stand the abuse. In fact, if anything does go wrong, the explosion that usually follows demolishes everything within range.

One of the largest manufacturers of nitro-glycerine has selected Graham Brothers trucks for this perilous work, thus paying high tribute to the dependability and staunch construction for which these trucks are noted. Their ability to "hold its road," due to the correct balance in design, the easy steering, quick and accurate power for the hard going, and the speed, especially adaptable to the type of hauling.

GASOLINE TAX BILL IS UP FOR REVIEW

Madison—(AP)—Senator Caldwell's bill calling for a 4 cent gasoline tax in Wisconsin was up before the joint committee on finance Thursday afternoon for review following its engrossment in the senate by a 17 to 1 vote.

The bill doubling the state tax has met with practically no opposition so far. These favoring the measure have used the argument that "the tourist who uses the Wisconsin roads should be willing to pay a share toward a better roads construction."

Approximately five and one half millions of dollars were emptied into the state coffers last year through the two cent gasoline tax.

In honor of her birthday, lunch was served and the evening was spent in playing games.

Mrs. D. J. McCully, daughter Evelyn, and son Lyle of Shiocton, spent the weekend at the H. F. Pincel home.

There will be a burn dance in Pincel's barn at Quinney Wednesday evening, June 1. Music will be furnished by Schneider's Jass Babies.

Old Heidelberg
Ester-aged

It's actually the flavor of real old-time beer — unimpaired, because the exclusive Blatz process restores the esters which give the beverage its popular old-time taste. The flavor is in the esters, not in the alcohol — and Blatz now knows how to separate the two elements. This discovery makes Old Heidelberg the finest brew you ever tasted. HUNDREDS VISIT OLD CONVICT SHIP

"Success" Will Remain Open to Inspection at Manitowoc Until May 30

With the split of interest and curiosity defying the angry bursts of rain that fell intermittently upon her historic decks, Sunday afternoon and evening, the old British convict ship "Success," moored at the foot of S. Ninth-st., in Manitowoc, gave way not an inch, under the tread of thousands of feet that filed over her sturdy gunwales, to the grim history of this Ghost ship, so grotesque in form, but seeming to rebuke generations, that have long since joined the innumerable hosts of the departed dead.

No exhibition yet arrived in Wisconsin, has come with such magnetic appeal to the minds and hearts of people, as this one-time dishonored queen of England's now historically notorious Ocean Hell; this monster of the deep, in whose awful cells her prisoners mourned. To the penal settlements of Australia and Van Diemen's lands, she carried human hearts, to perdition under the pitiless heel of savage cruelty and injustice. And no taxation on has done more to arouse the public conscience to the duty of stifling injustice, wherever it may raise its accented head in our own generation, according to noted editors and educators, of the day in which we live.

It was announced by the lecturers, men especially inspired in their service, that the "Success" will remain open to public inspection, at Manitowoc, up to, and including Decoration day, May 30. After this date, the old ship will be placed in dry-dock, in order to prepare this queer ancient craft for her triumphant return to the Atlantic sea-board, and her final voyage to Sydney, Australia, to rest at last in the harbor of her early iniquities.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is: THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SUCCESS AND FAILURE FOR THE DECLARER DEPENDS IN MANY HANDS UPON THE PLAY MADE TO THE SECOND TRICK.

This week our Bridge questions and answers will center upon the play of the second trick. For five days beginning today a complete deal of fifty-two cards will be given; the thirteen cards of each player, the correct bidding, and the four cards played on the first trick will be stated. The question then will be, which cards should be played on the second trick. In accordance with our custom, an answer blank will appear each day, so that the reader, after examining the hand, may note in pencil on that answer blank the four cards that he thinks should be played on trick 2. On the succeeding day the correct plays and the reasons supporting them will be given.

Once again you are urged to write your answer each day and to compare your answers with mine when they appear on the succeeding day. You also are urged to induce your friends, club mates and family to fill answer blanks. Compare them all at the end of the week. This series gives you the opportunity for a most interesting contest.

Today's Hand

9-5-2	K-5-3-2	A-10	10-8-7-4	K-6-3
10-6	9-7-5-3	Q-9-7	K-10-6	Q-9-8-2
K-4-2	A-10	J-10-8	A-Q-J	A-J-8-4
			7-5-4-3	A-6

With the above hand the bidding should be: South (Dealer), one No Trump; followed by three passes. The correct play to the first trick would be West, Club 3; East, Club 8; South Club A. The question is: Which four cards should be played to trick 2?

Answer Slip of May 23rd
On trick 2, the play should be:
SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST

STAGE And SCREEN

TOM MEIGHAN MELODRAMA.
"BLIND ALLEYS," COMING

Thomas Meighan, hero of many a romance, drama and comedy, enters a new field with his current Paramount production, "Blind Alleys," arriving at Fischers Appleton theatre Wednesday. The new vehicle can only be described in one way. It is melodrama—fast, thrilling, very impossible but—and this more important—superbly entertaining!

"Blind Alleys" presents Tom as a marine captain, newly married to a charming Cuban senorita. On the first night of their honeymoon they arrive in New York and proceed to buck up against a series of events which separate them. Meighan is struck by an auto and removed to a hospital and Greta Nissen, his wife, finds herself embroiled with a gang of desperate thugs.

Tom eventually leaves the hospital, only to fall unconscious on the street and wake up in a boarding house room with a beautiful woman, Evelyn Brent, nursing him back to health. What happens when Greta is rescued and finds her husband in his new surroundings provide the picture with many more dramatic situations than could possibly be adequately described at this time.

Frank Tuttle, director of "Lovers in Quarantine" and "A Kiss in the Dark," is said to have created for the screen exactly what Owen Davis visualized when writing the story. Emmet Crozier prepared the screen play.

"WINGS OF THE STORM"
Fox Films has scored another outstanding hit with "Wings of the Storm," at the New Bijou Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, with Thunder, the great dog star, in the featured role. It has aroused renewed interest in "man's best friend," while the vivid performances of Virginia Brown

Faire, Reed Howes and William Russell are very pleasing.

The scenic beauty of the production, which was directed by J. G. Blystone, is in itself a genuine delight and the photoplay is excellent.

The story is based on the mental and physical evolution of a dog. But it is the remarkable performances of Thunder, the magnificent police dog, that arouses the greatest interest. His performance is fascinating in the extreme and the acme of intelligence. There are several other good dog actors in the cast, among them White Fawn, Thunder's mate, but all are overshadowed by the work of Thunder.

Rule On Homers Leaving Park Tough On Umpires

BY BILLY EVANS

One of the tough plays in baseball for an umpire is the play governing a home run, which calls for the official to call the ball fair or foul according to where it was when it disappeared from view.

While it is not a particularly difficult matter to follow the course of the ball accurately, it is a decision that is often accompanied with most unpleasant reactions, since a matter of from one to four runs can be involved.

It was such a decision, made by Umpire Emmett Ormsby, that recently resulted in the suspension of Ty Cobb and Al Simmons and caused bitter words to be passed between Connie Mack and President Johnson.

The decision, by the way, showed how quickly a tranquil day for an umpire can be changed into a near riot. There hadn't been a previous dispute.

The Boston Red Sox were playing in Philadelphia. Up to the eighth inning, "Lefty" Grove, star southpaw of the Athletics, was pitching most efficiently and enjoying a slender lead by a 2-1 margin.

With one on in the eighth, Manager Carrigan sent in Ira Flaxstead as pinch hitter and he came through with a much-desired home run, putting Boston ahead, 3-2.

In Philadelphia's half of the inning, Ty Cobb, the first man up, drove a ball over the right field fence. Every body seems agreed that the ball was fair when it passed out of the enclosure. Had the umpire's jurisdiction ended at that point, all would have been lovely for the officials.

However, rules call for umpire to follow ball until it disappears from his view. The Umpire Ormsby did, and it so happened that the ball was finally carried foul. He so ruled and thereby wiped out the run that would have tied up the ball game.

the game and the decision remaining unchanged.

It is a rather strange coincidence that some years back, I figured in a somewhat similar happening, with the Athletics as one of the teams.

Playing at Washington, Frank Baker, then the home run king of the American League, hit a ball far over the right field wall. I feel that I am conservative when I say this ball was 30 feet fair when it passed out of the enclosure. Incidentally it cleared the barrier by about that distance. A high wind was blowing and as I continued to watch the ball, the thought came to me what an injustice it would be to Baker if the ball was blown foul before it disappeared.

That is just what happened. Had it been fair it would have put Philadelphia in front as two runners were on the bases at the time.

"I think that is a bad rule," was Connie Mack's comment to me after the game. I believe it would be much fairer if the jurisdiction of the umpire ceased when the ball passed out of the playing field."

In 1929 the rule was changed. It was proposed by Mr. Mack. I was strong for the shift. The new rule made any such hit a home run, if it was in fair territory when it passed into the stands or over the fence.

Babe Ruth made 34 home runs in 1927 for a record. As I recall it, seven of them resulted from the new rule.

It seems the National League didn't like the rule and some of the American League club owners were not so keen for it. About the middle of June it was decided from the code as far as it was concerned, going back to the old rule.

As it is now an umpire must keep his eye on the ball until it disappears from view before making his decision.

However, I will always believe that it is better to decide, and do so with a fair, and end the umpire's jurisdiction at the moment the ball passes out of playing territory.

MEMBERS OF TITLE TEAMS GUESTS AT CARD HOMECOMING

Badger Gridders of 1901, 1912 Invited to Iowa Battle on Nov. 12

Madison—Wisconsin football heroes of the past, members of the Badger championship eleven of 1901 and 1912 will be guests of honor at this year's Homecoming game with Iowa, Nov. 12, according to plans announced by the athletic department here.

An attempt will be made to bring the entire personnel of the two eleven to Madison for a huge mass meeting at the lower campus the Friday night before the Homecoming Battle. Fraternities, sororities and downtown business establishments will be encouraged to use more elaborate decorations than ever as a welcome to the returning champions.

Members of the 1901 aggregation which swept through the Big Ten for first place were include Eddie Cochem, "Norske" Larson, Emil Skow, Al Marshall, Art Curtis, Bill Juneau, Allen Abbott, Earl Schreiber, E. Hammonsen and A. C. Levrum. Names familiar to followers of the 1912 champions are Keeler, Hoffelt, Gillette, Lange, Van Gent, Moffett, Butler, Lamp, Tandberg, Van Ripert, Guelin, Ostie and Hanson.

While these men at present are scattered to many sections of the country, Director George E. Little hopes to round them all up before the eve of Homecoming.

BADGER FRESHMEN PREP FOR REGATTA

With Varsity Not Participating Yearling Crew May Go to 'Keepsie

Madison—(P)—Early morning workouts on Lake Mendota combined with afternoon sessions of two hours or more will be on the program for eight freshmen crew men at Wisconsin for another month or so.

With announcement from the athletic department at the university that the varsity crew would not compete at Poughkeepsie this year, special attention focused on the yearling crew, the probable hope of the middle west for recognition in the eastern classic.

Although it has not been definitely decided that the fresh crew would be sent to the Atlantic seaboard late in June, word to that effect is expected momentarily.

At five o'clock each morning the freshman crew starts a daily grind over the surface of the lake. Chilly winds and breezes during recent weeks have not been conducive to good rowing efforts but nevertheless training has continued. And, according to Dad Vail, whose efforts are now directed in perfecting a smooth combination among the yearlings, such practice sessions will continue until time for the eastern meet or until plans to send the group are quashed.

Many impromptu races have been held between the freshman crew and the varsity and despite a lack of coordination early in the season the first year eight has made remarkable showings. In several instances they have tagged behind the regulars by only a fraction of a length.

Heavy and powerful, the fresh crew outweighs the varsity approximately fifteen pounds to the man. Under the supervision of Dad Vail, who trails the eight in a motor boat, the squad will rapidly round into competitive form, according to the mentor.

Withdrawal of the varsity team from the eastern races came as a surprise to Badger followers but in view of recent setbacks suffered by the group the action was considered advisable. George Little, athletic director, Jefferson Burrus, captain of the crew, and Dad Vail, agreed that participation in the eastern races under the handicaps encountered so far this season would not serve to give the middle west a good representation in varsity tests.

Two varsity members have been confined to the infirmary for indefinite periods at one time or the other and ineligibility has also made inroads into the ranks of the eight. Choppy waves on the lake and cold weather have caused long delays in rounding into form.

GENE ASTONISHED AT SHOWING OF SHARKEY

New York—(P)—Having seen Jack Sharkey in action against Jimmy Maloney, Gene Tunney has come to the conclusion it is about time he began to train for that heavyweight bout in September against the winner of a Sharkey-Dempsey match.

"Sharkey is as good a fighter as I ever saw," said the champion as he made arrangements to leave New York the end of this week for the tiny Lakeside hamlet of Speculator, New York, in the Adirondacks where he trained for his title fight with Dempsey.

"Sharkey has everything. I was astonished when I saw him last Friday night."

VALLEY SPORTS TAKE GAME FROM 6TH WARD

Valley Sporting Goods Co. softballers won their fourteenth game with a 1-0 Monday afternoon win with a 12-5 victory over a Sixth Ward team. The winners took an early lead and with Lou Luntz hitting the lower to a first base were never in danger. Kunitz and Dandrich led the winners with three safe blows each and the former scored three times. Perkins and Falk led the losers with two hits each.

As the result of Tully's campaign for the 1927 election of Italian descent, the number of foreign stocks were less than half that of two years ago.

SWAT LEADER

EDDIE FARRELL

Could Travis Jackson have done any better than Eddie Farrell, his understudy, has done at shortstop for John McGraw's Giants this season? Jackson you know, stood an appendicitis operation before the season started and Farrell took over his job. How well Farrell has been handling the job can be seen by his close to .400 batting average and his great fielding at the sector between second and third.

DOROTHY PAGE FORGETS GOLF TO PASS EXAMS

Madison—Dorothy Page is going to defend her western title and also enter the national tournament this summer, but she hasn't much time these days to practice for the two events.

She's too busy studying at the University of Wisconsin! This young golfing star places her golf secondary to her studies and she's getting ready for final exams—she's only a freshman and like all freshmen worry a bit about 'em—which will be given within the next few days.

THE INSIDE OF A 100 BASEBALL

BY BILLY EVANS

1. Ball is batted over fence. It is in fair territory when it passes out of the park but is foul when it disappears from umpire's view. What is the decision?

2. Backstop is only 60 feet from home plate. What is proper ruling on a pitched ball that strikes it, working under such condition?

3. Shortstop in trying for a play at first, hits umpire working back of the pitcher with the ball. What is the proper ruling?

4. On a fly ball that is juggled by an outfielder but ultimately held, when can base runner who has held his base properly advance?

5. What is the definition of force play?

THIS TELLS IT

1. Umpire must rule such a hit fair or foul according to where it was when it last disappeared from view. In this case foul.

2. The regulation distance is 90 feet. The ball should become dead runner or runners be entitled to advance one base.

3. The ball is considered in play, runners advance at their peril.

4. Runner who has held his base can advance the moment the ball strikes the hand of the fielder making the play. He need not remain until ball be securely held.

5. A force-out can only be made when a runner legally loses the right to his base by reason of the batsman becoming a baserunner and he is there by obliged to advance.

Appleton High School Had Best All-Around Sport Year Of League

Orange Leads 7 Valley Schools in All Sports in 1926-27 Season

Cocher Joseph Shield's first year as athletic mentor of Appleton high school has been a decided success statistically compiled by sport writers of the conference for 1926-27, leading every one of the seven other Valley schools by at least two points.

West Green Bay is second, two points behind Appleton, and Manitowoc, a "weak sister" a couple years ago has entirely changed color and now is a prominent contender, one to be feared by all rivals, five points behind Appleton and three behind West.

Oshkosh, Sheboygan and Marinette are the weak sisters this year in spite of Marinette's title tie in football. East high shows a fifty-fifty proposition to all Manitowoc just ahead of the lower three.

Sport writers of the Valley worked out a point system, using the three major sports, football, basketball, and track. As there are eight schools in the loop a school was given eight points for a first in a sport, seven for second, six for third and so on down until the last-place team scored only one point. Appleton finished in a tie for third in football, second in basketball and first in track, having no places below third, for 21 points and first place in all-around sports for the year. West had a first in football, fourth in basketball and third in track for 19 points, and Manitowoc had a sixth in football, which lowered it from a possible first or second place, a third in basketball and a second in track for 16.

East was next with 13 featured by a third place tie in football and a fourth in track. Marinette had 11, though finishing eighth in basketball and seventh in track, by its tie for first in football. Sheboygan had 11 featured by a fourth in basketball and Oshkosh ends the list with 8, the highest number of points being secured in track with a fifth.

The tables:

fourth in basketball and third in track for 19 points, and Manitowoc had sixth in football, which lowered it from a possible first or second place to a third in basketball and a second in track for 16.

Kimberly—The K. C. Athletics Base ball team, Kimberly's entry in the Fox River Valley Baseball league lost a close battle Sunday to Two Rivers in an extra inning engagement by a 5 to 6 score. Kimberly netted three runs in the first inning when with two on "Dutch" Thiel cleared the fence with a hefty swat for a home run. Kimberly kept this lead until the third when with the bases loaded, Cooke's double chased two men crossed the plate adding two more runs to the Kimberly total. The Kimberly team led by a one run margin until the ninth, when with two out a Two Rivers player reached first on an infield error, only to score on a timely hit, to even the score and force the game into extra innings. In the tenth with two out and two timely hits the Two Rivers team forced in the winning run. Close decisions at the plate, against the K. C. squad kept them from numerous runs. Players being called out time after time on close plays.

"Red" Smith, 1927 captain of the championship Notre Dame baseball team caught for Kimberly. He will play at Kimberly against Oshkosh and Neenah on Sunday and Monday, May 29 and 30, before leaving school to join the Giants at New York.

London will have this year 14 new moving picture theatres of seating capacity of 2,500 or more, the total cost being approximately $15,000,000.

AZZERELLA WORKS FOR GO WITH KAHN

Joey Hopes to Force Harry to Fight Him if He Shows Good at Oshkosh

Milwaukee—Joe Azzarella Milwaukee, Italian lightweight champion of Wisconsin, put in a strenuous day of training Sunday and Monday, for his battle with Freddy Jacks of England Wednesday at Oshkosh. Joe is after a match with Kahn and feels that he can force the Jewish fighter into a contest if he decisively defeats Jacks at Oshkosh. Joe was earnest in his work that he flattened two of the young fellows who were working with him and now he must content himself with the heavier lads. Jack Heinemann, Milwaukee middleweight, has about finished his hard work for the other half of the double bill, with Washie Hendricks of Oshkosh Jack is a glutton for work in the gym and he expects to take the big end of the verdict from Washie, as it will mean another match for him with either Howard Bentz or Sig Zwick, who just now are interested in claiming the state title at 160 pounds. Matchmaker Earl Fuller has secured Richie Mitchell's latest star Barney Vanchetti, to fight Jack Beal in the semi-final Richie will be in his corner and will also have Howard Bentz, his star middleweight with him. The opener will bring Spike Kelly of Oshkosh and Earl Rogers of Appleton together for four rounds. It is likely that Pinky Mitchell will accompany the trio to Oshkosh, as he may want to fight one of them during the summer. Pinky has started training for his summer campaign and gave Heinemann a short workout Saturday.

WASHINGTON WANTS REGATTA AT MADISON

Seattle, Wash.—(AP)—A regatta on Lake Mendota at Madison, Wis., is being sought by the University of Washington. Negotiations were begun immediately after the announcement that the Wisconsin crews were not to enter the National Intercollegiate championships at Poughkeepsie this year.

If the Wisconsin rowing authorities are interested Coach Rusty Callow plans to take his crew direct to Madison. Washington has raced Wisconsin crews three times in the past, winning two out of the three events. From Madison, the huskies would travel direct to Poughkeepsie in time to train for the regatta, June 28.

IT PAYS TO SAVE
Kansas City—Two weary "knights of the road" trudged along toward Kansas City bearing the untold fates that had left them without a dime or a meal in two days. Then they saw two high school boys struggling in the waters of a flooded creek. Jumped in, saved them. Kansas City, appreciative, said it with $800, watches, clothing, food and offers of good jobs. But the pair moved on, accepting free bus transportation to St. Louis.

300 Athletes Expected At Madison On Saturday

Madison — Three hundred athletes and fifty coaches and athletic directors will take possession of Madison on the coming week-end to participate in the annual outdoor Big Ten track meet and the spring schedule and business meetings, respectively.

Early indications have it that some of the track mentors will arrive here as early as Thursday. This will permit the athlete to avoid the rush in becoming settled at the hotels and permit them to limber up here a day before the trials, which get under way Friday afternoon.

In addition to the competitors in the track and field games and their coaches, each school of the Western Conference will send four or five staff members here. The athletic directors, football coaches, faculty representatives, basketball mentors, trainers and the seldom advertised publicity men are all slated to be on hand.

Following two sessions on Thursday, which will be held in the governor's reception room at the state capitol, the directors will join with the grid coaches to map out football schedules early Friday morning. The 1927-28 basketball charts will be made on Saturday morning, while the faculty men will hold their parley Friday evening.

Among the entries in the 1927 outdoor championships are but a half dozen first place winners of a year ago. The balance of the men who featured in the games at Iowa City have departed. Rue and Lyon of Illinois, Burr of Chicago, Boyles of Iowa and Northrop and Hester of Michigan are the vets who will try to repeat this Saturday at Camp Randall Stadium. Four of them are captains.

400 RURAL PUPILS WRITE EXAMINATIONS

More than 400 pupils of Outagamie county rural schools wrote their final examinations Saturday at Seymour, Black Creek and Shiocton. About 210 pupils wrote the examinations at Seymour, 133 at Black Creek and about 80 at Shiocton. This represents about the half the students in the county, the others having written their examinations a week earlier at Kaukauna, Appleton, Bear Creek and Hortonville. County commencement exercises will be held in Appleton, June 13, according to A. G. Menting, county superintendent of schools.

Makes Delco a Better Oil

BECAUSE it is refined, wholly and entirely, from a pure, paraffin-base petroleum, and not from the cheaper, more plentiful asphalt-base crude stock, this higher quality (but not higher priced to you) motor oil delivers —

- 1—25% Greater Initial Heat Resistance — less "drag" when motor is cold.
- 2—12% More Oil "Body" at Motor Heat (safer lubrication while you're running).
- 3—15% less loss, through vaporization and burning.
- 4—19% Less Carbon Content (Conradson test).

There is no magic in the making of motor oils. They can be no better than the crude petroleum from which they come. Their only possible variation is DOWNWARD, for carelessness here, as in all else, brings its inevitable results. For longer motor life—greater mileage between drains—less loss and less oil to add between drains—play safe with Delco.

Feet Are as Varied as Faces
No. 15

This is one of a series of twenty illustrated advertisements explaining the difference between the many types of feet, and suggesting the proper foot-wear for each.

Tender Soles

Over the bones of the foot, where the greatest weight is borne and jars sustained, nature provides cushions of granulated fat. This fat serves as a cushion under the heel bone and across the tread of the foot, where the toes seem to be fastened to the main part of the foot.

With the complexity of muscles, ligaments and nerves found in the sole of the foot, it may be easily understood why feet suffering from too short, too narrow or the wrong shaped last will smart and burn and otherwise how for relief.

Novelty salespeople have studied feet: they know feet: they know how to fit shoes so that you may enjoy complete comfort and resulting better general health.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Because he believes they have worldly ambitions which he wants to further, T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, chooses three girls from his establishment to come into his home as his wards for one year.

BILLY WELLS, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three that is sincere. NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON, on the other hand, are under false pretenses. Billy overhears old Curtis say he is going to adopt one of the girls as his daughter when the year is up and in order not to have unfair advantage of the girls, he tells them. She is unwillingly drawn into the battle which Nyda and Winnie wage for the old man's affection.

The strain of this, together with an infatuation for DAL ROMANINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, their chaperone, is causing her to lose interest in her violin. In spite of her obsession for the romantic Dal, she remembers tenderly CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor. Clay is disinterested himself and is biding with Mrs. Wells in a poor section of the town, working in the Truman factory in daytime and writing music at night.

Winnie Shelton offers to do old Curtis' retail work in the evening, so Billy, who often is asked to play for the old man, will not get the upper hand. Old T. Q. fits up a kindergarten room for Nyda and obtains two private pupils for her. Romaine asks Billy to allow him to accompany her on the shopping tour. He directs her to the exclusive shop of Madame Dubois, where she makes purchases to the amount of three hundred and ten dollars. As they leave the shop, she is surprised to hear the saleslady mention to Romaine his previous visit there with Winnie Shelton. When they ride toward the country, they see Nyda Lomax with her head on EDDIE BANNING'S shoulder. Eddie was Nyda's chauffeur-sweetheart in her department store days.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI
"Tell me about you and Nyda and Winnie before you came to live at Mr. Curtis' house," Dal Romaine suggested, as the roadster sped away from Colfax. "What sort of girls were they? Were the three of you friends, or enemies, as you now seem to be?"

"Nyda and Winnie were friends, or rather, as close friends as two such pretty girls can be," Billy answered. "Nyda was our store vamp, but she had no real harm in her. She was engaged to Eddie Banning, the chauffeur you saw her with just now, and she thought she was doing very well indeed to get him. He makes sixty a week, and has his room, meals and uniforms as well as fat tips from his millionaire's employer's guests. And I think Nyda was really in love with him."

"What sort of chap—Banning?" Dal asked casually, his eyes on the road.

"Oh, a roughneck. I suppose you'd say, not too chivalrous toward women, not even toward Nyda. But he suited Nyda—then, before she was thrown into luxury, and a society for which she was not fitted. None of us was fitted for the life we've been thrown into."

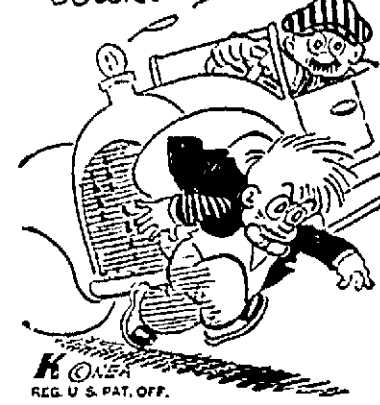

"Except you," Dal told her softly. "You're a lady born and a lady bred, regardless of the fact that you've had to work for your living."

"Thank you, but it's not true, just the same," Billy contradicted him. "Tell me about Winnie." He smiled indulgently, as if she were a stubborn child.

"Winnie," and Billy's voice hardened slightly. "was the prettiest girl in the store, and the men spoiled her. She could always get any man she wanted, and no girl's best beau was safe if Winnie wanted him. If T. Q. hadn't taken her up, she would probably have married Clyde Stewart, or someone like him, and glad of the chance. Now—well, she's playing for bigger stakes, and if she goes back to the store—of course she'll never be a private secretary; she hasn't that sort of brains—her whole life will be spoiled. So will Nyda's. I don't know what's holding her to Eddie Banning, for it's plain that she hates him now. And I don't believe either Winnie or Nyda will land a husband among the society men we've been thrown with as T. Q.'s wards. After all, we are Cinderella girls, shopgirls playing at society, and the agreement we signed prohibits us from marrying within the year. Of course a contract like that would not about his skinny legs in the March wind.

Romaine spoke rapidly in a foreign tongue, and was answered in the same language. Then the East Indian shuffled to the car, and after salaaming low before Billy, opened the door and stood back deferentially as she alighted.

"Sukha Singh says that Kennedy is out in his car. He darkly suspects misfortune, but I'm sure old Ken will turn up any minute. If he isn't here within half an hour, we'll have lunch—anyway. Ken probably has had a little car trouble. His old bus is a hundred years old, more or less, and he rarely takes it out without having to be hauled up."

His speech of explanation carried them into a big living room, furnished with an inconspicuous mixture of cheap American-made furniture and East Indian rugs, brasses, pottery and garishly colored printed muslin. She stared about her in amazement, as she walked slowly to the fire blazing on the wide, deep hearth.

"A bit of India, to give you a taste for it," Dal Romaine told her softly, as he lifted her moleskin coat from her shoulders.

"The East Indian servant shuffled out of the room, after a few rapid sentences and another series of salaams, closing the door after him."

Billy stooped to warm her hands at the fire, while Dal Romaine leaned against the mantel, his brown hand striking a cobra candlestick made of brass, its intricate carving painted with red and green. Her gaze had not left him, and now it widened, became fixed in an unwinking stare, as the mysterious power of his black eyes, narrowed and burning, had its way with her.

Slowly his hand that was stroking the coiled cobra of the candlestick lifted, slipped along the mantelpiece, dropped to his side, clenched into a hard, brown fist. His whole body seemed to grow as rigid as a bronze statue. Only the eyes escaped rigidity. As she stared at him, spellbound, the lids lifted their long black lashes until the full size of the sooty black irises, and right eye gave up its secret. When the irises were fully revealed, their dull blackness seemed to turn to glittering polished jet.

Their bodies were less than three feet apart. Entirely without her own volition, Billy took a jerky, mechanical step forward, raised her arms slowly as if they were controlled by marionette strings. He stood quite still, knowing that he did not have to raise a finger, drawing her, compelling her, by the hypnotism of his wide, unwinking eyes.

When her shaking hands touched his shoulders, she threw herself upon his breast, her eyes closed, by contact with him. His arms went about her then, holding her close. It was relief and terror, but her fingers dug deeper into the smooth cloth of his coat, as if she were afraid that she would die if she loosened her hold.

"I want you to—kiss me," she panted.

ASK CITY OFFICIALS TO OFFICERS' MEETING

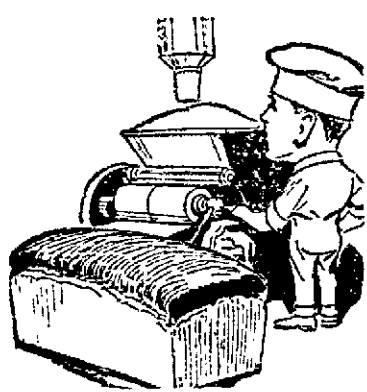

Mayors, city councils and clergymen of Appleton, Neenah and Menasha have been invited to attend the meeting of the Fox River Valley chapter of the Reserve Officers Association Wednesday evening at Conway hotel, according to Lieut. P. O. Keicher, secretary of the chapter. Mayor J. T. McGullan of Green Bay, a former naval commander, will speak on The Organization, Functions and Purposes of the Reserve Officers Association and Its Plan of National Defense. Every member of the chapter has been asked to bring a guest.

Dal Romaine tells Billy the weird, illogical, reticent or—rptl insure startling, repulsive story of his life—and sets the seal of possession upon her.

DISMISS MANITOWOC'S GAS RATE COMPLAINTS

Madison—(AP)—The complaint of the city of Manitowoc, against rates of gas, of the Wisconsin Fuel and Light company was dismissed by the state railroad commission Monday.

The city, on March 12, 1925, entered complaint with the commission and asked for hearing of charges that the company's rates were too high, "unreasonable and unjust" that the gas pressure was often too low to insure proper use, and that the heat content of the gas was below the requirements. The complaint was later amended, however, to exclude the questions of service and practice, and hearings were held in Manitowoc and Milwaukee on the charges.

The commission, in its order, compares the rates and consequent income of the company, plus the income from sale of appliances, with the cost of operation, and finds that the rates are NOT unreasonable and provide only a fair income from the earnings.

"It is therefore ordered," the commission says, "that the complaint be dismissed."

TRACES HISTORY AND GROWTH OF COOPERATIVE MARKETING

CHEESE FEDERATION OFFICER ADDRESSES 50 PRODUCERS HERE

Outlines Development of Movement Since Its Inception in Denmark

BY W. F. WINSEY

Special Farm Writer

Fifty milk and cheese producers in the town of Center, assembled in the Pleasant Dale school building Thursday evening, most of whom were patrons of the Shady Side and Wallace cheese factories, and for two hours listened to F. G. Swoboda, an officer of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers Federation, trace the history of cooperation among farmers and manufacturers in Europe, Canada, New Zealand and America, and the conditions of the people and business from the inception of the cooperative movement down through the years to the present time.

Among the most striking examples of the growth of the cooperative movement mentioned by Mr. Swoboda was that of the people of Denmark who in their early history were mere chaffers that passed from one landlord to another with a change of title to the land. These people continued in serfdom until they began to make a study of the causes of their condition and to join hands and work cooperatively to obtain relief. And now as a result of their experience in working together as a unit, the dairymen of Denmark are able to compete with the dairymen of the United States in the markets of the United States, notwithstanding high tariff handicaps, the speaker pointed out. As the chief result of their cooperation, the dairymen of Denmark, have raised the average milk production of their cows several thousand pounds yearly above the average of the Wisconsin cow, they produce superior quality and are able to compete with other producers in the markets of the world and make money.

OTHER EXAMPLES

Among other examples of successful cooperation in production and marketing, Mr. Swoboda mentioned the manufacturers of farm machinery and automobiles, telephone companies, fruit producers of California, and the grain growers of Canada.

In closing, Mr. Swoboda outlined the growth of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers Federation in the past 14 years, from 1913, when the federation erected its first building in Plymouth, and handled 6,000,000 pounds of cheese, to 1926 when it had warehouses at Spring Green, Pine Island, Wausau, Green Bay, New Richmond, Cumberland, Abbotsford, Neenah, Dodgeville, St. Paul, Greenwood and Marshfield, and handled 23,300,000 pounds of cheese. In 1913, the business done by the federation amounted to $887,000 and in 1926 over $7,000,000.

But, according to Mr. Swoboda, the federation even now does not handle enough cheese to be a factor in the control of the market. In order to be an influence in that line, the federation must increase its business considerably.

Mr. Swoboda criticized the Wisconsin farmer sharply for spending all his time in the production of milk and no time in the marketing end of his business, and for his failure to work cooperatively in production and marketing.

CLASS WILL GIVE PLAY TO FINANCE SUMMER TRIP

Marquette—Instead of the regular commencement exercises, the graduating class of Stephenson Training school will take a trip by bus, starting on June 15, to the Dells, Devil's Lake and Madison. While in Madison, the class is to visit the university and the state capitol when the legislature is in session.

To finance the trip, the class will put on the three act comedy, "All of Sudden Peggy" in the Stephenson Training school, May 27; at Scheuren's hall, Coleman, June 3; at Crivitz high school, June 4, and Racine's hall, County Line, June 10. Beside giving the play, to raise funds the class is serving lunches at entertainments.

4-H CLUBS EXPECT TO BEAT RECORD FOR 1926

Marquette—Last fall, the 4-H clubs of Marquette county, was awarded the first prize in a state contest in sewing at the Milwaukee, first prize in a state contest for potatoes at Antigo, and second prize in potatoes at the International Stock and Grain Show at Chicago, and these winnings are suggestive of what the clubs expect to do this season.

There are now between fifty and sixty 4-H clubs organized and at work in the county with a membership of 600 boys and girls under B. L. Carter and Miss Mary Dalziel, both of the school of agriculture. On July 18, 50 members of these clubs are to go into camp at Lake Nequabay for recreation, instruction and the selection of local club leaders. In the last week in July, the clubs will hold a roundup on the county asylum grounds in connection with a meeting of the Holstein Breeders' and Dairymen's associations.

FEED FOR HEIFER
Raising a 30-month-old heifer cost an average of $105.42 for feed, according to figures obtained by agents in New Hampshire. This is a weighted average, using the same price for all feed stuffs regardless of actual cost to the farmer.

FARM PRODUCTS GO UP
In the last ten years, British Columbia's farm population has doubled and its dairy production increased from $3,900,000 to $10,000,000 in value.

BIG COOPERATIVE GAIN
Figures collected in 1922 and 1925 for cooperative associations handling dairy products, fruits and vegetables indicate the small association lost in relative importance and the large association gained.

EVENING CLASS IN JOINT MARKETING

First Cooperative Evening Study Courses Are Offered in Colorado District

Greeley, Col.—Farmers in this district are making up what is believed the first evening class in cooperative farming ever conducted. Their example is to be followed soon with the establishment of other evening classes throughout Colorado.

The class is being conducted by the department of vocational agriculture at the Greeley high school, in conjunction with the department of vocational education of the state agricultural college and with the various co-operative associations.

W. P. Hoppe, field manager of the Colorado Potato Growers' exchange, and J. D. Pancake, secretary of the Mountain States Beet Growers' association, are the instructors. Besides conducting the classes, these men go out among the "students" on their farms and give them practical instruction in the handling of their products.

The classes take up all possible matters concerning co-operative marketing, including organization, financing, pooling of products, sales methods and even the laws concerning this form of agricultural trade. "It is not the purpose of this evening class to promote co-operative marketing nor to challenge the cause of any co-operative marketing association," says Dr. C. H. Lane, chief of the agricultural education service of the Federal Board of Vocational Education. "The real purpose is to present in an organized study the fundamental principles underlying cooperative marketing of farm products. It has been felt for some time that there has been a real need for a purely educational program in this important field."

FROG-CATCHING PAYS IN SHIOCTON REGION

Shiocton—During their spare time, especially when they cannot work in the fields, a number of boys and men are doing a lucrative business in the catching of frogs to supply local and city demand. Frog buyers from the large cities are visiting frogging centers along the Wolf and Shiocton rivers, are working up a considerable trade, and paying 50 cents a pound for frogs. It is reported that the local froggers are making all the way from $5 to $10 a day when the frogs are moving in armies. Day and night frogging is in vogue.

WINTER WHEAT CONTEST

A winter wheat growing contest, similar to the corn yield contest which has been carried on for several years, is planned for 1927 by the Nebraska Agricultural College and county farm bureaus. The purpose of this contest is not to encourage more wheat but to see who can grow the most wheat per acre at the greatest profit.

LEEMAN FARMERS IMPROVE PROPERTY

Cement Floors and Mangers to Be Installed in Two Barns This Summer

Leeman—Vern Cummings and Albert Larson expect to put cement floors and cement managers into their barns this summer. Mr. Cummings put up a new barn about three years ago and Mr. Larson put a basement under his barn at the same time.

Joel Poole has recently completed building a new chicken coop. It is modern in all respects, except that it has no electric lights.

Ed Kegal recently completed painting his farm home. The apple trees of this vicinity have begun to bloom. Several farmers set out cherry, apple and plum trees, besides berry bushes. The farmers have completed seeding and are now planting corn.

SHREDS 200 BUSHELS CORN

Stockbridge—Joseph Gorn of Southtown shredded about 200 bushels of corn at the H. F. Pingle farm last week. The corn had stood on the field all winter, but was in first class shape.

BUILDS GARAGE

Stockbridge—Miss Ida Welch is having a 12 by 18 garage built at her home in Quincy. Frank Denslow is the carpenter.

Unkept Hands Spoil Entire Effect

Every woman should have soft, white, youthful hands to complete the picture of daintiness expected of her. While eating, dancing, playing cards, in fact, whatever you do, your hands are noticed as much as your complexion. You can't neglect them without spoiling the impression you make by being well groomed in every other detail. The easiest way to keep your hands soft, white and firm is to massage them with the dainty lotion you can make by simply squeezing the juice of two lemons into a bottle of Orchard White, which you can get from your nearest dealer. It clears and refines the skin, making toil-worn and stained hands look like a queen's.

FARMERS CONVERT UNPRODUCTIVE SOIL INTO PAYING LAND

Everglades Begins to Yield to Advancing Tread of Civilization

Palm Beach—The Everglades, that extensive swampy wilderness in southern Florida, have finally been put under man's control.

This change from a trackless, imposing waste to useful territory is still going on, but man has already as much as conquered its obstacles. Concrete roads cross it, drainage ditches plow through it, its lands are lined with growing plants.

Only a few years back this was the stronghold of the Seminoles, practically the last of the Indian tribes to hold back against the advance of white civilization. Only a few miles to the east, however, culture in its highest form has been dispersing itself along the shores of Palm Beach, West Palm Beach and Miami.

Now, displacing the Seminoles, except for their small reservation, perspiring farmers are making a paying proposition of this great swamp, while within 50 miles the Vanderbilts, the Stoburns and the Biddles bathe in the sunlight almost unaware of this great change.

MILLIONS IN ROADS
The transition from swampy wilderness in the Everglades has been in progress for some ten years, but the greatest activity has come since 1922.

Today, with the appropriation by the Florida legislature of $20,000,000 for the completion of the drainage of the Everglades, that hinterland of American antiquity stands on the threshold of its greatest importance.

Even now roads and railroads have been constructed in the erstwhile jungle in sufficient mileage to give almost adequate transportation. There is, for example, that 50-mile road built on centuries of muck and silt—the Conners Highway—constructed at a cost of more than $2,000,000 by W. J. Conners, Buffalo capitalist and publisher.

The Everglades counties, too, have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in highways. Three railroads have penetrated this land of the Indian canoe and moccasins.

BIG RETURNS FROM CROPS

In agricultural development, out of Palm Beach county alone 2500 cases of winter truck have gone north this winter as against 1000 cases last year. It is estimated the crops this season will yield more than $3,000,000. This money will be divided, theoretically, at least, among the 2000 families now inhabiting the Palm Beach county and greatest portion of the Everglades.

At present there are five principal shipping crops and three principal staples, grown in the Everglades. In the order of their importance the shipping crops are: Tomatoes, beans, potatoes, eggplants and peppers. The three most important staple crops are sugar cane, corn and peanuts.

Of the shipping crops, the beans are the fastest and return quickest money since a stand of them may be "made" in from 55 to 65 days and oftentimes in 40 or 45 days.

MANY WOMEN TO ATTEND MEETING AT WEST ALLIS

Seymour—Nearly all the local leaders in the study of Home Economics expressed their intention at the meeting held in residence of George Arnoldussen, route 4, of attending the "Women's Camp" meeting of the home economics extension people, to be held on the state fair grounds, West Allis, which opens on Wednesday, June 1.

ALFALFA ENRICHES SOIL

Alfa adds to the fertility of the farm whereas grass hay crops deplete the stock of organic and mineral elements and leave the land poorer on that account, says Ford S. Prince, soils and crops specialist at the University of New Hampshire.

EGGS WITHIN EGGS IS PROUD BOAST OF THIS AMBITIOUS HEN

Henry H. Krause, a farmer on route 4, Appleton, owns a Rhode Island hen that attracted more than ordinary interest last week. It wasn't the hen itself, but what she did that was unusual.

Within three days she laid two eggs measuring 3 inches from end to end and 2 1/2 inches in diameter, and each egg contained a smaller one inside. And just to prove the story, Mr. Krause brought the eggs to the Post-Crescent Monday afternoon and showed them to the farm editor.

Chicken eggs of this size are unusual but not exactly rare, but seldom does one find one egg inside another, according to nearby farmers.

BIG DEMAND FOR DAIRY CATTLE ABOUT SEYMOUR

Seymour—Two carloads of springers and milkers were recently picked up by Dimey and Zabel, Elkhorn, in this vicinity. Fred Hurdia and Willis August, Elkhorn, are here trying to purchase a number of the same kinds of cows and thus far have succeeded in getting eighteen. The latter buyers intend to ship on Thursday.

Mr. Hurdia said that a large number of dairymen in southern Wisconsin lost heavily as a result of the tuberculosis test. The losses ranged from a few animals to entire herds. Out of a herd of 63 cows, Mr. Hurdia said he lost 49 head.

It is reported in livestock centers that Robert Kuehne, local livestock buyer, shipped eight cars of hogs, cattle and calves from Chilton, last week and three more cars from the same station, Wednesday.

ECONOMICS CLUBS MEET AT MARINETTE SCHOOL

Marquette—Tuesday, May 24, was selected by Gladys Meloche, clothing specialist in charge of home economics extension, agricultural college, University of Wisconsin, for the final meeting of home economics groups in Marinette. Miss Meloche asked the groups to meet the same day in order that all may have the opportunity of seeing the food demonstrations by Miss Gladys Stillman. The meeting was held in the Stephenson Training school.

LOW RETURN ON FARM

Calculations made at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, show that farmers last year got only $108 each for their year's work, after allowing 5 per cent for the use of capital invested and paying all operating expenses.

CORNS Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation. adv.

U. S. AUTHORITIES SCOFF AT IDEA OF STATIC FOR CROPS

European Theory of Promoting Growth by Electricity Old in U. S.

Washington—That idea, lately advanced in France and Germany, of speeding the growth of plants by electricity from the air is nothing new to America. In fact, it's so time-worn that the Bureau of Plant Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture turns up its nose at it.

The reason is, this same department has been working on the theory of harnessing electricity to propagate plants since 1907, and so far the only effect produced has been that of killing vegetation, rather than helping it.

If the energy is administered in sufficiently concentrated amounts. The original scheme of static electricity possessing chemical power was conceived by Christofleau, Frenchman, who solicited the aid of the American Consul in France.

Experiments were immediately begun by the Bureau of Plant Industry, under the direction of Dr. Lewis H. Flint.

Static antenna masts were erected in the laboratories of the department and an attempt was made to measure the electricity so harnessed. Past experiments made it possible to measure electricity as low as one divided by one-hundred million, but even this infinitesimal particle was negligible in the experiments.

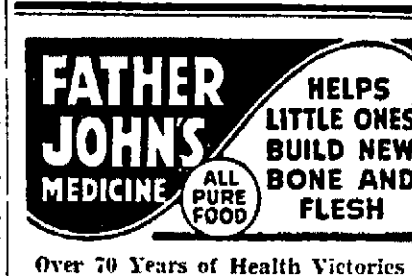

"Logically," says Dr. Flint, "it is ridiculous to imagine that enough electricity could be so corralled as to in any way effect fertilization."

The idea of electrical energy aiding the superior fertilization of an experimental field conducted near Berlin, in contrast to a field cultivated normally, was refuted by Dr. Flint. He says it is evident that a field carefully tilled to admit the installation of the underground wires necessary for static fertilization would yield a superior crop, since such a field would be more thoroughly broken up or made fallow by stirring the soil.

HEAVY RAINS DELAY SEEDING SMALL GRAINS

Shiocton—A number of farmers on the lowlands of this vicinity have been delayed this spring in the seeding of small grain due to late, heavy rains. As corn planting time is drawing near, some of the land set aside for small grain will be planted with corn, buckwheat or millet.

The students handled their parts skillfully. Aletta Bottrich was the most brilliant, who received the attentions of three men, Wayne Farmer, Clair Poole, and Victor Maahs, as author, artist, and musician, respectively. Three characterizations of older people which received favorable comment were the major, played by Carl Sams, and Mr. and Mrs. Ballou by Alvin Dobberstein and Wilma Krueber.

The Widow Wood and her four children—parts acted by Sylvia Borch, Adela Gartzke, Marie Louise Schwarz, Howard Mace, and Neo Poole—were responsible for many of the laughs in the play. Nathan Hough and Albert Oelke, a Jewish immigrant and an Irish census taker, Margaret Houghton and Gerald Prentice made a success of a city-air, country-fellow type sketch. Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For after years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it cures stomach troubles three times as much as acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1874.

Time-Saving Way of Dyeing

For perfect tinting of dainty underwear, dresses, etc., the easiest way and by far the best way—is the use of real dye. It tints in cold water, you need not use the garment and it takes whatever time you wish to give it. A matter of minutes.

Real dyes will get such smooth and even tones as shame the stonker, which was the work of so many preparations for the purpose; Diamond dye in original powder form is only fifteen cents at the drug store. Do your own tinting. Then dip to tint—and you'll have an effect that's beautiful. And if you want the tint permanent, just use boiling water!

Diamond dyes do a perfect, "professional" job of dyeing. Too, the druggist has sample shades and simple directions. For a book of endless suggestions, in full color, request a free copy of Color Craft of DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N22, Burlington, Vermont.

STUDENTS ALMOST PROFESSIONAL IN ALL COLLEGE PLAY

Capacity House Sees Excellent Performance at Theatre Monday Night

An excellent performance by players who seemed almost professional was given in the Lawrence all college play, "You Never Can Tell," at Fishers Appleton theatre Monday night, before an audience which filled every chair in the house. The comedy by George Bernard Shaw was clever in itself and the young actors interpreted their roles in a finished manner.

Miss Ione Kreuss, Appleton, junior at the college, was a charming leading lady as the eldest daughter of a writer, Mrs. Lanfrey Clanton, whose part was excellently taken by Miss Katherine Pratt of Appleton. The play opened when Mrs. Clanton and her husband had been separated for 15 years. Her three children had stayed with the mother: Gloria, and the twins, Dolly and Philip, played by Miss Anne McInnis, of Milwaukee, and Herbert Unecroft of Washburn. Much comedy parts were taken cleverly by the twins.

Elmer Ott, Kaukauna, was a typical, irascible landlord, Percus Crampton, who eventually is revealed as the father of the children. His wife changed her name for her writing and the children went by the mother's name. In the closing scene of the play the husband and wife appear to be reconciled and Crampton has lost a part of his irritable disposition.

John Robson, Mendota, ably carried the role of the young dentist, Mr. Valentine, the leading male part. He is the tenant of Crampton and it is through him the family is reunited. The dentist and Gloria are the chief characters in a love plot in the comedy.

Although less important, other characters were equally well acted. Miss Eunice Davis, Richland Center, was a parlor maid; Ray Richards, Neenah, Mich., student business manager of the play, took the part of William, the waiter; Arthur Malmberg of Janesville, was Finch McComas; Bruce MacInnis of Milwaukee was Jo, a young waiter; and Tom Yates of Amery was Walter Bohun.

Miss Lucille Welty, dramatic teacher at the college, directed the production which was presented by the public speaking department of the college. Miss Helen Chagwin assisted Miss Welty. Prof. A. L. Franke, head of the public speaking department, was business manager. Bruce MacInnis was in charge of advertising; John Robson of publicity; Victor Quam, stage manager; Norman Greenwood, assistant stage manager; properties, Beatrice Olin, Dorothy Verrier, Anita Koehler, and Tom Yates; wardrobe, Madge Reimer, Eunice Davis, and Myrtle Ellis; makeup, Harry Oaks; scene design chairman, Bruce MacInnis.

Settings of the play were planned and worked out by members of the play production class and scene painting was done by members of Miss Ames Baker's art class at Lawrence conservatory of music. The play moved rapidly both from a mechanical and a dramatic point of view.
